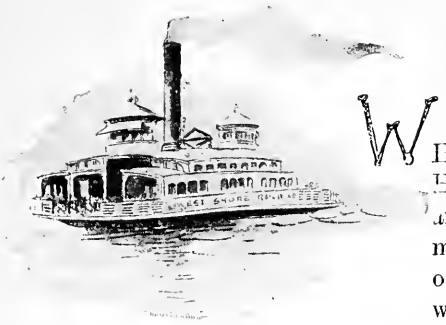
Our Little Summer Girl.

THE WEST SHORE ROUTE.



WHILE many suppose that both sides of the Hudson River present equal attractions—and it would be hard to decide which is the more beautiful—it is a curious fact that all, or nearly all, the noted summer resorts, for which the country adjacent is famous, are located on its western bank. Thus, starting from New York and following up the West Shore Route, we find the Palisades, Tappan, Rockland Lake, Stony Point, Cranston's, West Point, Cornwall, Lakes Mohonk and Minnewaska, the Catskills, Saratoga, Mount McGregor and the Adirondacks (in which the great river rises), all on the same side, and all easily accessible by the West Shore Railroad. In addition to these, this route conveys the traveler to Lake George, Lake Champlain and Montreal on the north; Sharon Springs, Cooperstown, Richfield Springs, Niagara Falls, Buffalo and Chautauqua Lake, and makes close connections for all the White Mountain and Eastern resorts, for the Thousand Islands, and the lake region of Central New York. It is thus emphatically the tourist route of the north, and realizing this fact, its managers are doing everything in their power to render it attractive to this constantly increasing and most fastidious class of travelers.

While traversing the most picturesque portions of a State noted for its scenery, this railway is complete in all details of construction and equipment. It is a double-track steel rail line, with an unusually wide space between tracks, running north from New York along the west shore of the Hudson to Albany, and thence through the fertile valley of the Mohawk and across Central New York, touching at Utica, Syracuse and Rochester, to Buffalo and Niagara Falls. Its grades are easy, its curves are light, and its steel rails are among the heaviest known in railway construction.

The passenger engines burn anthracite coal, and are designed to haul heavy trains at a high rate of speed. They are provided with special arrangements in the fire and smoke boxes and smoke stacks to consume all gases, and to prevent the escape of smoke or cinders.

The entire passenger equipment of the road was especially designed and built by the Pullman Palace Car Company, and is the most complete in all details pertaining to elegance of finish, comfort and safety, in the world. The smoking cars, finished in figured oak, and provided with revolving chairs upholstered in leather, are perfect specimens of the car-builder's art. The exterior of the cars making up West Shore passenger trains is painted in a rich dark olive and gold, which produce a most pleasing effect.

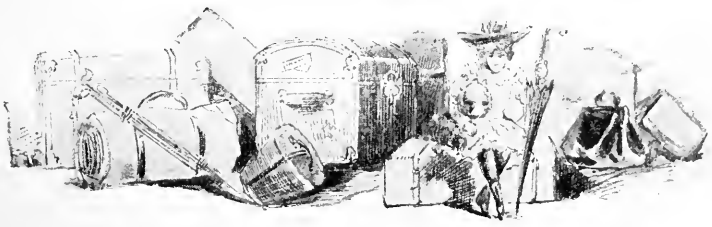
All the drawing-room cars, passenger coaches, baggage, mail, express and postal cars in service on the West Shore Railroad have been equipped with Sewall Safety Car-Heating Company's system of steam-heating. Live steam is taken directly from the boiler of the locomotive. No fires for heating purposes in any of the coaches are permitted.

The station houses erected along the entire route from New York to Buffalo and Niagara Falls are architectural gems, harmonious in color and design with the beautiful and picturesque scenery through which the road passes.

The New York terminus of this great railway is at Weehawken, opposite the heart of the great city, and close to the ground on which Alexander Hamilton fell before the pistol of Aaron Burr. It extends for more than a mile along the river front, and, with its numerous docks and piers, presents nearly six miles of working space, in which vessels of every description may receive freights. The illustration on page 12 gives a very fair idea of the Weehawken terminal and handsome railroad station. From here commodious and elegantly appointed ferry-boats run to the handsome up-town passenger station at the foot of West Forty-second Street, and to and from the down-town station of the West Shore Route at the foot of Franklin Street, North River. As some of the trains of the West Shore Route are also despatched from the depot of the Pennsylvania Railroad in Jersey City, they are accessible by Annex Boats from the foot of Fulton Street, Brooklyn. This connection in the Jersey City station of the Pennsylvania Railroad is of special advantage to the people of New Jersey, Pennsylvania and the South en route to or from the attractive health and pleasure resorts of New York State, New England and Canada. Passengers are advised to consult official time-tables in the Company's publications, or in the leading newspapers, to ascertain just what trains leave from and arrive at the Jersey City station. All trains leave from and arrive at the West Shore stations—up-town station foot of West Forty-second Street, and down-town foot of Franklin Street, North River—while a number of trains have connections to and from Hoboken and Jersey City.

In the following pages one may obtain partial glimpses of some of the innumerable delightful summer resorts to which this highway for business and pleasure travel will guide him, and a few hints of the many pleasures in store for his summer holiday ; and in this connection it may not be amiss to assert that, of the many lines leading from New York, none offers to the tourist and pleasure-seeker a greater variety of tours and routes from which to make a selection than the West Shore Railroad.



GENERAL INFORMATION.

AN object of this hand-book is to supply those seeking summer homes, or a delightful tour, with information regarding the natural features of the country, and to aid them in deriving instruction and pleasure on the way, as well as to present a wide field from which to select a summer home in the most delightful region in the vicinity of the great cities of the East. The modest boarding houses—which generally afford good accommodations at moderate charge—as well as the large palatial hotels, appear in the lists published herein; although there are a great number of respectable farm and village residences along the west shore of the Hudson, in the Catskills, and throughout New York State, at which families will be accommodated at reasonable charges, that do not appear in the list. The omissions are probably due to the fact that the invitations for the particulars desired escaped the attention of many to whom they were addressed. The West Shore Railroad Company will appreciate any suggestions or corrections for future editions that may be addressed to C. E. Lambert, General Passenger Agent, New York City.

Living and Traveling Expenses.—The cost of a summer's residence or tour necessarily depends on one's habits and resources. There is no region in the vicinity of New York where the rich and the poor alike can secure so much for their money as along the west shore of the Hudson, in the Catskills, or among the attractive resorts of New York State. People of affluence have abundant opportunities for displaying their preference for the large hotels, while those of small incomes have it in their power to grade their "outing" expenses down to the narrowest limits. Particular information regarding terms may be found in the Hotel and Boarding House Lists following the descriptive matter in this book.

Season for Summer Homes.—It is, of course, the better plan to become comfortably settled before, and return to city homes after, the heat of summer has attained its height. Accommodations can be secured as early as May and until autumn merges into winter. The beautiful foliage of autumn adds immeasurably to the pleasures of a prolonged stay in the country. The houses along the Hudson and in the Catskills, occupying high elevations, are coming into favorable notice as winter resorts for those afflicted with pulmonary affections, and many of the large houses are now prepared to entertain guests the greater part of the year.

FACTS ABOUT YOUR BAGGAGE.—The Westcott Express Company will call for and check baggage from hotels or residences in New York, Brooklyn or Jersey City to destination. Orders may also be left at any ticket office of the West Shore Railroad. No employé of the Company at stations or on trains will be permitted to handle baggage roughly. Agents of the Westcott Express Co. will meet all trains in ample time to arrange for the transfer of passengers and baggage from trains to residences, hotels, depots, or steamer docks in New York, Brooklyn, Jersey City or Hoboken.

One hundred and fifty pounds of baggage will be checked free on each full-rate summer excursion ticket, and seventy-five pounds on each half-rate (child's) ticket. In selling tickets and checking baggage over other lines this Company acts only as agent, and assumes no responsibility in connection with tickets or baggage beyond the terminus of its own road.

To ensure the forwarding of baggage on same trains by which passage is taken, passengers should be at the station at least fifteen minutes before advertised time for departure of trains, as it is necessary to present your passage ticket to station baggage-master when baggage is checked.

In having baggage checked to New York by West Shore Route, notify checkman at what station in New York, delivery is desired. Baggage will be checked to the West Shore depot, foot of West 42d Street, and to the down-town depot, foot of Franklin St., to suit the convenience of passengers. All baggage checked simply to New York will be delivered at the West 42d Street station.

Passengers for Brooklyn via West Shore Route should take particular care to have baggage checked to Brooklyn. If properly marked, baggage for Brooklyn will be conveyed from Jersey City to the foot of Fulton Street, Brooklyn, by Annex Boats connecting with trains, so that it can be claimed upon arrival. This arrangement has already proved a great convenience to the people of Brooklyn, who are thus relieved of vexatious delays in the delivery of baggage.

Travelers to or from New Jersey coast resorts, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington and the South, holding tickets by the West Shore Route, have their baggage checked through and transferred to connecting trains in the Jersey City station, thus ensuring prompt delivery and lessening the chances of having baggage damaged or lost.

RESTAURANTS.—The restaurants along the West Shore Route at Weehawken, Kingston, Syracuse, Rochester and Buffalo, are among the finest and best managed railway restaurants in the East. Moderate charges only are authorized, and price-lists are posted for the information of the public.

EXPRESS MATTER.—The National Express Company is in charge of the express facilities of the West Shore Route. Parcels or shipments of any kind requiring despatch will receive prompt attention if forwarded by the National Express. The Company's agents are at all stations of the West Shore Railroad, and its principal offices in New York City are: General Office, 145 Broadway; Branch Offices, 946 Broadway, 136 Franklin Street, 302 Canal Street, 399 Madison Avenue, West Shore Depots at Franklin and West Forty-second Streets, etc.; also, at 109 Hudson Street, Jersey City.

They also have a number of offices in Brooklyn and its suburbs, furnishing a quick and economical service for the forwarding and delivering of trunks, valises and all classes of express business. (See advertisement in back of book).

Drawing-Room and Sleeping Car Accommodations. — The Wagner Palace Car Company operate the Drawing-Room and Sleeping Cars on the West Shore Railroad. The new cars introduced by this progressive Company, in elegance of finish, luxurious appointments for the comfort of passengers, and in general attractiveness, have never been surpassed. Drawing-Room and Sleeping Cars—handsome and comfortable—will be run between New York and the Catskill Mountains, Albany, Saratoga, Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Toronto, Chicago, and intermediate points. Drawing-Room and Sleeping Car accommodations may be obtained at the Company's principal passenger office, No. 363 Broadway, corner Franklin Street, New York City; 338 Fulton Street, or Annex Office, foot of Fulton Street, Brooklyn, or at any ticket office of the Company in New York, Brooklyn, Hoboken, or Jersey City. These offices are connected by telephone or telegraph with the Company's principal city ticket office at No. 363 Broadway, New York, where all diagrams are held to within one hour of the departure of trains. (See location of ticket offices on page 12).

Stop-Over Privileges.—The rules in effect on the various transportation lines over which summer excursion tickets are sold, with regard to the stop-over privileges allowed the holders of such tickets, are not uniform. As a general rule, holders of summer excursion tickets are privileged to stop off at pleasure within the time limit of tickets; but to avoid any misunderstanding, passengers desiring to stop off should give notice to the ticket agent at the time tickets are purchased, and always to the conductor of train or purser of steamer, in order that they may make proper endorsements or issue stop-over checks.

Optional Excursion Tickets.—Through coupon tickets reading via West Shore Railroad between Albany and New York will be available via People's Line or Day Line Steamers in either direction. Passengers from points west of Albany desiring to go via steamer should make application to conductor on West Shore Railroad for exchange ticket, and have baggage re-checked before arrival of train at Voorheesville. North-bound passengers via Day Line will be required to have their rail tickets exchanged by Purser on steamer. North-bound passengers via People's Line will be required to have their tickets exchanged at Company's office, Pier 41 North River.

Tickets reading via People's Line or Day Line Steamers, Albany to New York, or vice versa, will be accepted on West Shore Railroad trains upon payment to conductor of $1.60, if via People's Line, and $1.10, if via Day Line Steamers. Tickets reading via People's Line or Albany Day Line Steamers, Albany to New York or vice versa, will be accepted on Citizen's Line Steamers, New York to Troy or vice versa.

Tickets reading via Rotterdam Junction to points on Fitchburg Railroad, Boston, or east thereof, are good via Saratoga, at option of passengers, commencing June 1st and until October 31st.

Tickets via Sound Line Steamers between New York and Boston entitle holders to a berth.

Meals and berths are extra on the steamers of the Detroit & Cleveland Steam Navigation Company between Cleveland or Detroit and Mackinac Island.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD CONNECTION.

WITH THE PEOPLE of the States of Pennsylvania, Maryland, and the South such places as West Point, Mohonk Lake, Minnewaska, Cornwall, the Catskill Mountains, Alexandria Bay, Thousand Islands, Saratoga Springs, Lake George, the Adirondacks, Sharon Springs, Richfield Springs, Lake Chautauqua, and Niagara Falls have been famed summer resorts for many years. The connection formed in the Union station, Jersey City, between the Pennsylvania Railroad and the West Shore Railroad, together with the through Drawing-Room Car Service, cannot fail to give satisfaction to all interested in securing improved facilities to and from the most popular of American summer resorts.

WEST SHORE ROUTE.

Is a superbly built and magnificently equipped double-track steel rail trunk line between New York, Albany, Buffalo and Niagara Falls, and forms in connection with the famous Hoosac Tunnel Line and the popular Great Western Division of the Grand Trunk Railway, the shortest route between Boston, Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Detroit, Chicago, and St. Louis.

PALACE SLEEPING CARS are run regularly between Boston and Chicago; Boston and Detroit; New York and Chicago; New York and Toronto; New York, Buffalo, Niagara Falls and Detroit; New York, Utica, Syracuse, and Rochester without change.

ELEGANT DRAWING-ROOM CARS are run during the summer months between Boston and Syracuse; New York and Buffalo; New York and Albany; New York and Saratoga; New York and Caldwell, Lake George; New York and Phœnicia and Grand Hotel Station in Catskill Mountains; Long Branch, Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, and Saratoga; Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, and Phœnicia, Grand Hotel Station, Stamford and Bloomville.

"SUBURBAN HOMES ON THE WEST SHORE."

A very interesting and instructive little book descriptive of the suburban country through which the West Shore runs. If you are looking for a place in the country in which to locate, either for temporary or permanent residence, do not decide until you have read "Suburban Homes on the West Shore." Copies can be obtained at any ticket office of West Shore Railroad; for list of offices see page 12.

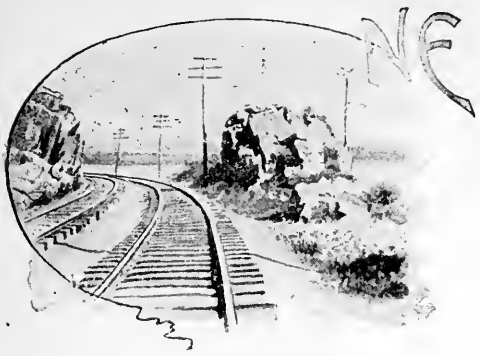
UP THE WEST SHORE OF THE HUDSON.



summer evening, several years ago, a small group of Americans were sitting on the veranda of the principal hotel at Schaffhausen, on the banks of the Rhine, in Switzerland. The blue waters, crested with white foam, were dashing over the falls, and the soft ruddy light of the setting sun lingered on the mountain heights. Conversation naturally turned to the beautiful river, so rich in ancient historic memories, on the placid bosom of which they had recently sailed from Cologne. One of the company said, "Did you ever explore the beauties which lie on the banks of the Hudson River, especially those which are located on its western shore?" The almost universal reply was "No! We have seen it only as we have passed swiftly along on the New York Central Railroad, or from the steamers that ply between New York and Albany." "Well," replied the first speaker, "I think the time is not far distant when a railway will be constructed which will bring the many beautiful and historic places, which lie along the western banks of that great river, within easy reach of both East and West. The Rhine may have legends of old robber barons who, in olden days, ruled with mailed hands the people who dared not resist their will, but the Hudson has grander memories of heroic deeds by men who fought for liberty, and whose courage and faith have given to man the greatest, freest land on which the sun shines; and thousands who are deprived of the pleasure of traveling in the historic ways of the Old World will find scenes as fruitful of noble memories, as rich in stories of heroism, as full of poetic suggestion, and scenery as grand or beautiful, mountain air as salubrious and health-giving, as any that cluster about the Rhine or the snow-clad Alps."

This prophecy has been realized by the West Shore Railroad. The traveler on this magnificently-equipped Road finds himself borne along through towns and villages, which are reminiscent of the energy and patience of the Dutch settlers of more than a century ago, by the side of the majestic river up which Hendrick Hudson sailed, and which bears his name, under the shadow of the Catskill mountains, haunted by the shades of Rip Van Winkle and the merry men of the old Dutch days whose potations laid Rip to sleep for years; skirting lakes as beautiful as Leman or Lucerne, passing such places as West Point, the Alma Mater of many a great American military hero, and Saratoga and Mount McGregor, up to the Adirondacks, in the vast forests of which the wild deer still wanders, brooks flash in the sunlight where the shy trout hides, and lakes rich in attractions for the followers of Isaac Walton, lie embosomed beneath the hills, placid and clear as mirrors. Should the tourist wish to travel further, this road and connections will carry him to Lake George, Lake Champlain, and Montreal, on the north, or the Sharon Springs, Cooperstown, Richfield Springs, Niagara Falls, Buffalo, Chautauqua Lake, and closely connect for all the White Mountain and Eastern resorts, also for the Thousand Islands, and the Lake Regions of Central New York. THE WEST SHORE RAILROAD is emphatically the Tourist Route to the North, and no pains or expense have been spared by the Company to make it so attractive and pleasant as to satisfy the most fastidious class of travelers.

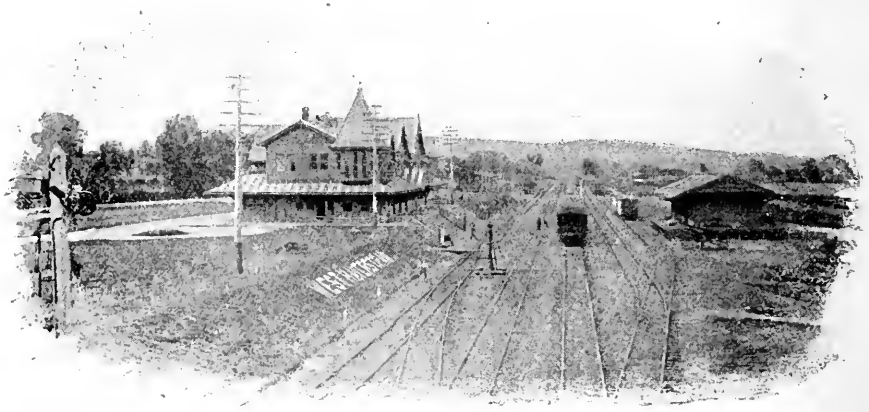
Two principal things are essential to comfort in Railway travel—construction, and equipment. The West Shore road is a double track steel rail line, with an unusually wide space between tracks, running north from New York along the west shore of the Hudson to Albany, and thence through the beautiful and fertile valley of the Mohawk, and across Central New York, touching at Utica, Syracuse, and Rochester, to Buffalo and Niagara Falls. The grades are easy, the curves light, and the rails, being among the heaviest known in railway construction, ensure smooth and pleasant movement.

The Cars—ordinary, drawing-room and sleeping—are all luxuriously appointed. The Wagner Palace Car Company, by which the latter two were designed and equipped, have comprehended in them artistic beauty and perfect comfort.

The question "Where shall we go for a Summer Vacation, and find salubrious air, fine scenery, and natural enjoyment, health and pleasure combined?" is fully answered by the West Shore Railroad. In search of this answer the writer and some friends took a trip over this route, and in the following pages we propose to take you with us, and with pen and pencil portray the grand and delightful scenery, the historic incidents which gather round the places through which it passes, and the many charming summer resorts and beautiful sites for suburban homes, this great highway has made easy of access.



WEST HAVERSTRAW STATION.

THE START.

BEING residents of upper New York, we took the boat at the ferry, foot of West Forty-second Street—down-town passengers take the ferry at foot of Franklin Street.

Brooklyn passengers start from the Brooklyn Annex Station, at the foot of Fulton Street, connecting in the Jersey City Station with trains of the West Shore Railroad.

A short but pleasant sail across the river brought us to the Terminal Station of the road at Weehawken. The extent, beauty and commodious arrangements of this building at once impressed us that the comfort and convenience of its patrons is of first importance in the judgment of the managers of the road. Architecturally it is a fine example of the Queen Anne style, and, doubtless, the handsomest terminal on the water front in the City of New York. The most fastidious traveler can find nothing wanting in its offices and waiting-rooms.

We take our places in one of the handsome and well-appointed cars, and are quickly away on our quest. Scarcely has the train left the depot than we find ourselves passing historic ground. We catch a glimpse of the place where Aaron Burr and Alexander Hamilton met and fought, and Hamilton fell mortally wounded.

On the hill-top stands the old colonial mansion of Colonel King, and the boulder of rock against which Hamilton fell, and on which are inscribed the letters "A. H." The initials of the name of a man whose loss to the country was second only to that of Washington.

In a few moments we are carried through the tunnel and into the broad sweep of the Hackensack Valley, which stretches away in vast meadows covered with tall, willowy grass, brightened with numbers of beautifully-tinted wild flowers.

The road runs along this valley for about thirty miles, and at intervals the river is seen lending enchantment to the view. Seven miles from Weehawken bring us to Ridgefield Park. This is the first of a series of suburban towns and villages which have recently grown up along the line of the West Shore, since the opening of this railroad. The rapid transit and direct communication with New York City thus secured are already recognized and producing a wonderful change in the character of this lovely valley.

The old Dutch farms have awakened out of the sleep of years. A new life is thrilling and new prosperity appears in the old Dutch settlements of Bergenfields, Schraalenburgh, Orangeburgh, and Blauveltville. The suburbs of New York City or Brooklyn offer no more charming sites for homes than can be reasonably obtained in this beautiful valley. Attractive houses are rapidly building, and the sound of the hammer blends with the shriek of the locomotive where once almost dead silence reigned. The liberal rates of the West Shore Company make this a most advantageous position for people of moderate means desiring to own a home. Leaving behind us the town of East Hackensack, we come quickly to Teaneck, with a pretty little red sandstone station, quaintly harmonizing with the quiet scene. The residence of the Hon. William Walter Phelps attracts our attention, but we are soon past that and come to West Englewood, situated on the slopes of the Palisades, and destined soon to rival as a suburban residential village Englewood proper, which is located two miles to the eastward. The next place of interest is the old ante-revolutionary village of Bergenfields.

The old stone church, with its gilded weather cock, is an interesting relic of early Dutch days, and in the graveyard one can read, on moss-grown stones, the names of men and women who brought to this land the old Holland spirit of liberty and religion, which has given to America some of her noblest sons.

PINE HILL, N. Y.

From Bergenfields we run to Harrington, where many pretty cottages and summer residences are already built, and at West Norwood again see on the left the Hackensack River.

Then we rush over the line, and leave New Jersey, and are in New York State.

Let us stop over for an hour at the next station, for it is Tappan.

CROSBY FALLS—SLIDE MOUNTAIN P. O., ULSTER COUNTY, N. Y.

Few sadder stories of the Revolution are told than that of the misguided Major Andre.

There stands the house in which he was imprisoned, and nearby the one occupied at the time by Washington. Gallows Hill is pointed out as the spot on which, amid the tears of friends and foes, the gallant young officer was hung on October 2, 1780. That is, however, an error. Our Washington, ever magnanimous as he was courageous—in consideration of the fact that Andre was too honest to shield himself by dishonor, and was but the tool of the arch traitor Arnold—decided he should be shot as a soldier, and not hanged as a spy. Inexorable martial law left nothing other to be done. Scorn covers the name of Arnold; pity mantles the fate of Andre. And charity will think no evil of the monument which an American raised—not to his deed, but to the mistaken loyalty which led him to his death.

Leaving Tappan, we skirt the eastern side of the Hackensack River, bordered by the range of high hills, beyond which lie the Hudson River and Nyack. Blauveltville is the last of the old Dutch settlements in the valley, and two miles bring us to West Nyack, one and a half miles from Nyack. This will soon be a thriving village.

Thirty miles now we are from New York, and we stop at Congers Station, Rockland Lake. A half mile walk brings us to the Lake—a most beautiful sheet of water, clear as the Lakes of Norway, nestling among the western hills of the Hudson, reflecting their wooded crests in its mirror-like breast. It charms us by its beauty. Its dry, balsamic mountain air has proved very beneficial for bronchial and lung diseases, while its accessibility from New York, makes it most advantageous to thousands who cannot go to more distant resorts.

Looking over its many features of interest, we predict for it a great future, as a Summer and Winter resort. The Lake furnishes fine fishing and pleasant boating; beautiful drives through striking scenery can be taken in every direction; and in Winter—skating, ice-boating, and tobogganing can be indulged in. Why go hundreds of miles from the City of New York, when all these can be obtained within sixty minutes?

THE HUDSON.

"I wandered afar from the land of my birth,
I saw the old rivers renowned upon Earth;
But fancy still painted that wide-flowing stream,
With the many-hued pencil of infancy's dream.

"I saw the green banks of the castle-crowned Rhine,
Where the grapes drink the moonlight and change into wine.
I stood by the Avon whose waves as they glide,
Still whisper his glory who sleeps by their side.

"But my heart would still yearn for the sound of the waves,
That sing as they flow by my forefathers' graves,
If manhood yet honors my cheek with a tear,
I care not who sees it—nor blush for it here.

"In love to the deep-bosomed stream of the West,
I fling this loose blossom to float on its breast;
Nor let the dear love of its children grow cold,
Till the channel is dry where its waters have rolled."

HOLMES.

Leaving Congers the train bears us nearer and closer to the range of hills on its right for about two miles. Suddenly we plunge into a tunnel and in a moment emerge into the sunlight and our eyes rest on one of the most magnificent scenes the imagination can conceive. The quiet landscapes and low levels through which we have passed are changed for lofty mountains on the one side and the broad-sweeping waters of the Hudson River on the other. The track is clinging to the side of the High Torn Mountain and a hundred feet below flows the majestic Hudson, widening out into what is known as Haverstraw bay. Our first exclamation was, "Oliver Wendell Holmes is right." The Rhine, the Rhone, the Avon, are not to be compared with this.

Every kind of craft is sailing on the breast of that miniature sea. Great steamboats—perfect water palaces—leaving a wide wake of foam in their track, strongly-built sloops laden with lumber or brick, luxurious yachts, the property of New York's merchant princes, schooners, lighters, barges, canal boats, all evidences of the vast industrial interests of our country; and little pleasure boats, in which youth and maidens sit, picturing how they will sail in coming years down the river of life. The scene is charming beyond description. Across the river lies the low peninsula Croton Point, and behind is the Croton river which supplies New York's millions with water, and empties itself into the Hudson. For a mile or more we get a glorious view of the Highlands, and then the train wheels round to Haverstraw, whose vast brick yards, miles in extent, from which millions of bricks are shipped to New York, show the richness of the clay deposits on this shore. About a mile from West Haverstraw station, standing prominently on the hill-side to the left of the railroad track, is an old-time frame house, built in 1770. It is called "Treason House," from the fact that it was there Arnold and Andre prepared their treasonous plot. It is now used as a summer boarding house.

Again we approach the river, and the next spot of interest is "Stony Point," which pushes out boldly into the river on the right.

The lighthouse which crowns its summit marks the site of the revolutionary fortification which was captured by the British on June 1, 1779. On the 15th of the following month, "Mad" Anthony Wayne, as he was called for his daring and audacity, surprised the British garrison and recaptured it for the revolutionary forces. We now skirt a line of white limestone cliffs yielding a million bushels of lime annually. Then pass Tomkins Cove, and the "House of the Good Shepherd." This noble charity cares for hundreds of homeless children, gathered from the streets of the great city. Our attention is next attracted by Dunderburg, the first of the Hudson Highlands, massive and impressive, the dread of the old Dutch mariners who fancied they saw imps in doublet and hose playing pranks in the mist.

Across the river, at this point, is the beautiful town of Peekskill, the birthplace of the Hon. Chauncey M. Depew, the President of the West Shore Railroad; there, also, for many years resided Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, both representative Americans, who have contributed largely, by pen and by eloquent speech, to the success of our national institutions. On the plateau, on the opposite side of the stream named Jan Peek (after the Dutch navigator who explored it), is located the State encampment of New York, in which, during the months of July and August, the several regiments of the National Guard of the State of New York are initiated into the duties, hardships, and pleasures of camp-life.

Jones Point, the next station from Tomkins Cove, is the terminus of the contemplated Dunderburg Spiral Railway, the greatest gravity railroad in the United States. This is sure to become one of the most popular summer resorts on the Hudson, and on the summit of Dunderburg Mountain, a pleasure-ground is being constructed, which will soon eclipse any similar resort in the world.

This lofty mountain stands like a gigantic sentinel, as if guarding and yet pointing the way through a mighty causeway to the most picturesque and impressive portion of the Hudson River. By this Spiral Railroad the tourist will be carried, swiftly and safely, to the summit of the mountain. The beauty of the scene there unfolded passes all description. Below is the river, placid and clear, and above, the sky deeply blue, over which the white clouds flit like swans in a sea of azure. Hills mantled in purple bound the horizon, and valleys over which light and shadow chase each other lie at their feet. Returning, the railroad still winds around the mountain and surrounding hills for fourteen miles, and at each turn new scenes in wonderland break on the ravished gaze. One will have to travel far and wide in other lands to find scenes equalling these which the West Shore Railroad thus places within reach of an hour from New York City.

It is not only a panorama of natural beauty which is unfolded to us from this point, but a number of places rich in interest to the student of Revolutionary history. The names and deeds of such heroes as Israel Putnam and Anthony Wayne are interwoven with places within easy reach from this point.

The marvelous improvements in modes of travel within the past half century are impressed on us by the fact that the old burghers of New York regarded a journey to Albany with as much dread as men now think of going into Darkest Africa, and never thought of taking the voyage without making their wills; and now the West Shore Railroad bears us in luxury and safety through this romantic scenery, and in a few hours lands us in the old and fair capital of the Empire State.

For thirteen miles the road now threads the Highlands of the Hudson, and new charms greet and impress the traveler every moment. Rounding Dunderburg, and passing Iona Island, we are confronted by the frowning mass of Bear Hill. Over against this mountain towers Anthonys Nose. Some have said that it got its name from a fancied resemblance to the nose of St. Anthony, a monk of the third century, in Egypt. The humorous explanation of Washington Irving seems to us more probable: "Old Peter Stuyvesant had a celebrated trumpeter named Anthony Van Corlear. This trumpeter had a most illustrious nose, tinted with the ruby of many strong potations," says Irving. "Now, thus it happened that bright and early in the morning the good Anthony, having washed his burly visage, was leaning over the quarter-railing of the sloop contemplating it in the glassy waves below. Just at this moment the illustrious sun, breaking in all his splendor from behind a high bluff of the Highlands, did dart one of his most potent beams full upon the refulgent nose of the sounder of brass, the reflection of which shot straightway down, hissing hot, into the water, and killed a mighty sturgeon that was sporting beside the vessel. When this astonishing miracle was made known to the governor, and he tasted of the unknown fish, he marveled exceedingly; and as a monument thereof he gave the name of 'Anthonys Nose' to a stout promontory in the neighborhood, and it has continued to be called 'Anthonys Nose' ever since." The Indian name for this mountain, which is one thousand two hundred and twenty-eight feet high, was "Kittatenny," meaning "Endless Hills."

These two mountains form the majestic gateway to the Highlands. In the days of our War for Independence, a massive chain, buoyed by a raft of logs, was stretched from one to the other, thus barring the progress of the British ships from further ascent of the river. All along the route, as we thus travel it, we see the most beautiful and salubrious sites for "Suburban and Summer Homes," which were almost inaccessible until the West Shore road connected them with the great centers of commerce in New York.

The rapid growth of the villages and towns along the line bears witness to the wisdom of the projectors and managers of this highway.

WEST POINT TO NEWBURGH.

We are still surrounded by historic country. The interest increases at every point we touch or pass. On the eastern side rises "Sugar Loaf" Mountain, thrown out by the clear air and its background of blue sky, as sharp and clean-cut as an obelisk. Fine estates, with large old-fashioned mansions, relieve and add to the beauty of the scenery.

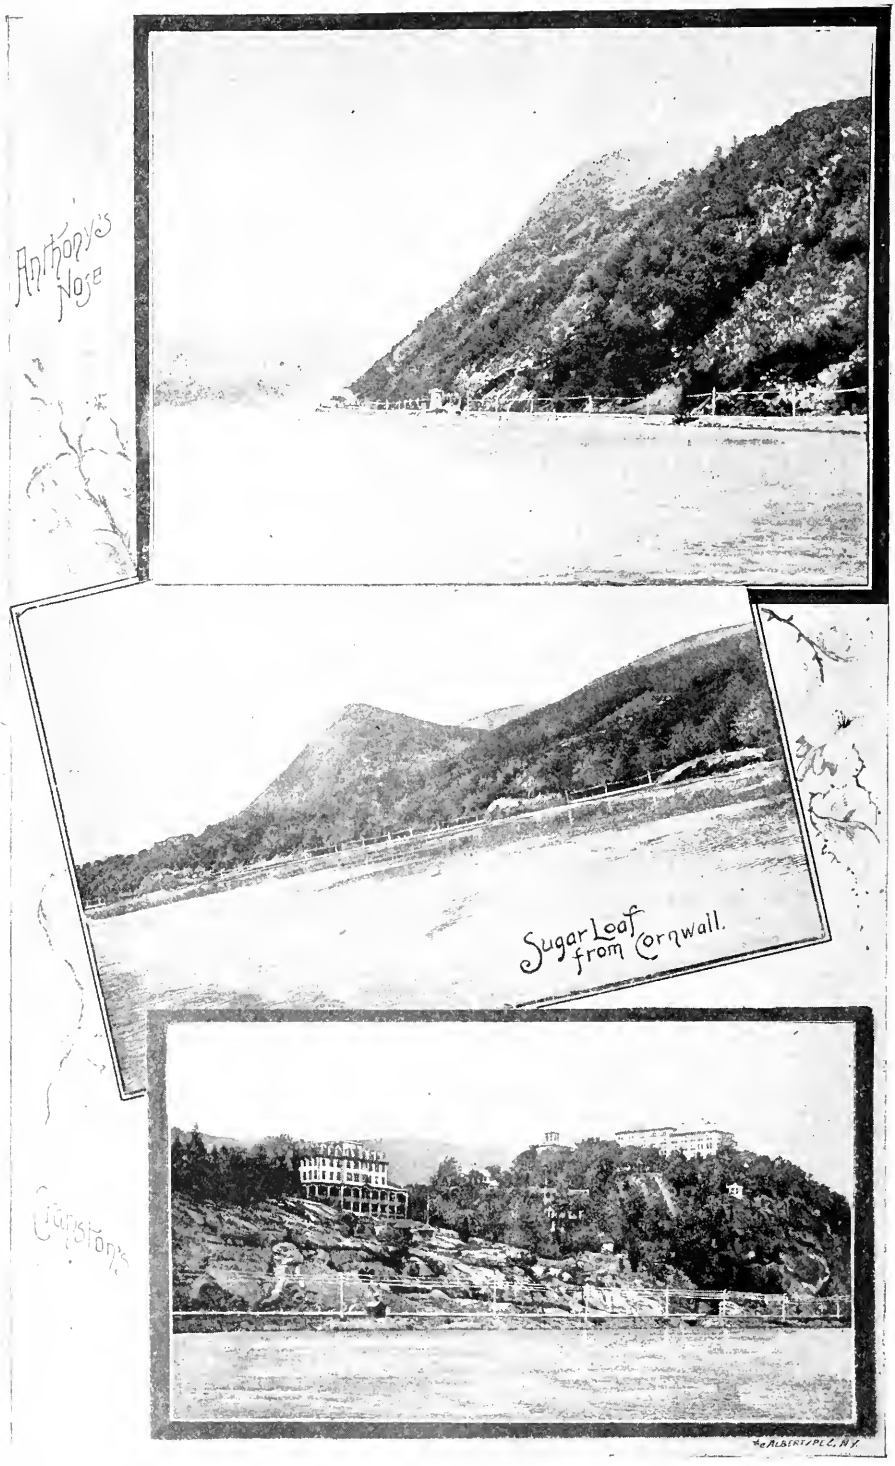
On the left the water of "Buttermilk Falls," named by Irving, dashes over the rocks. North of that is "Cranston's," a spacious hotel, with broad piazzas and summer-houses, perched on a commanding cliff, from which ravishing views of mountain and river open to the gaze. One mile further, and forty-eight from New York, and the train stops at the handsome station of West Point.

In the days of the Revolution this was as important a port to America as Gibraltar to England.

Washington selected it as the most fitting site for a Military Academy. In 1826 it became the property of the United States Government.

Shadowed by the fact that it was once commanded by Benedict Arnold, the man who died without a country, West Point is now irradiated as the "Alma Mater" of some of the greatest military geniuses who have won national renown in our history; and of many brave soldiers who were in its school trained to that discipline which is essential to action, and the loyalty which is the citizen-soldier's noblest crown.

A day or two spent there will well repay the tourist. The Government buildings are handsome, commodious, and admirably fitted for their purpose. Barracks, and riding-school, and stables are models of excellence in construction and fitness. There is a fine library and chapel, and also a hall fitted up as a gymnasium, with a gallery of paintings and museum attached. From the flagstaff floats the star-spangled banner, and near by a fine collection of old war relics. Near the river bank stands the monument to Kosciusko, whose words, "Where Liberty is, there is my country," are a motto worthy of adoption by all men, for all time.



ON THE HISTORIC HUDSON.

One thousand feet above the parade ground "Cro' Nest" lifts up its head. From its plateau a scene of great beauty is unfolded. This hill faces us as we leave West Point. It has been immortalized in literature as the scene of Joseph Rodman Drake's exquisitive poem, "The Culprit Fay." Moonlight on the Hudson produces effects that equal any on mountain or river in any part of the world. Such an effect has been pictured by the poet thus:

"T'is the middle watch of a summer night,
The earth is dark, but the heavens are bright;
The moon looks down on old Cro' Nest—
She mellows the shade on his shaggy breast,
And seems his huge grey form to throw
In a silver cone on the wave below."

The mountain rising to view on the North is "Storm King." The early Dutch settlers prosaically called it "Butter Hill," but N. P. Willis, with poetic insight, seeing in its scarred and bare front, a wall of iron breasting the fury of the elements, gave it the name it now bears. It is indeed a "King" of the Hudson mountains, standing watch and ward over the western Highlands.

Beyond the "Storm King," lie the gentle slopes of Cornwall, and the hill country that undulates away to the Catskills.

CORNWALL-ON-THE-HUDSON.

Where could the seeker of a quiet resting place for the Summer, or a home of sweet repose and healthfulness, find a prettier spot than this. It is one of the many such places the West Shore Road has made accessible.

Its lovely shaded walks and drives winding through forests where the sun steals with tempered rays through the over-arching trees down into valleys musical with the water's rippling flow—up to mountains catching the first and last rays of the rising and setting sun, give to the wearied body and the taxed brain new life and strength.

It was here that our own sweet poet, N. P. Willis, lived and found inspiration for his charming contributions to American literature.

At this point the New York, Ontario and Western Railway connects with the West Shore and branches off to the Northwest. Through range after range of mountains, this line runs into Central New York, and finally terminates at Oswego, on Lake Ontario.

The name given to this mountain region by the Indians, "The Endless Hills," was poetic and appropriate. On the summits of those, now known as the Old and New Beacon, signal fires were lighted during the Revolution, and in 1883—the Centennials of Newburgh and Fishkill—they were again lit, in honor of the heroes of a hundred years ago.

"That ridge along our eastern coast
From Carolina to the Sound,
Opposed its front to England's host,
And heroes at each pass were found.

"A vast primeval palisade
With bastions bold and wooded crest;
A bulwark strong by nature made
To guard the valley of the West.

"Along its height the Beacon gleamed,
It formed the nation's battle line;
Firm as the rocks and cliffs where dreamed
The soldier seers of Palestine."

From Wallace Bruce's Poems.

NEWBURGH.

This is one of the most beautiful cities on the banks of the peerless Hudson, and is a most attractive place for either summer or permanent residence. From the river side where it seems to have its feet in the clear cool waters, it rises in terrace after terrace up the slopes of the hill, forming with its attractive residences and church steeples a most charming scene.

The broad bay below with its sail boats and steamers, is a picture never forgotten by those whose eyes have rested on it.

The commodious station of the West Shore Railroad is worthy of the city which it has thus connected directly with New York. Newburgh is very rich in interesting historic memories. The visitor, naturally, goes first to the old stone house with low walls and overhanging roof, which was the last of the houses occupied by General Washington as headquarters during the Revolution.

The relics of that grand struggle, for a government of the people, for the people and by the people, gathered there, bring up memories of the Father of his Country, his gracious wife, and La Fayette, and Baron Steuben, and other great patriots, who then wrote their names, not on marble, but on the hearts of generations of men.

Standing beneath the Tower of Victory, erected by the National Government, we could but recall the words :

"These are the men, round whom we build our love as an arch of triumph,
Through which we pass to glory and immortality—
Men, all bone, who took the giant world by the throat and made it swear,
At peril of its life, to maintain their name and fame."

It was here Washington was tempted to assume kingship, and flung the proffer back with more than kingly scorn.

It was here the rank and file of the army chanted the words which are the tocsin of American liberty, "No king but God!"

It was here when the army was advised to revolt by an anonymous letter, that Washington, trying to read, was arrested in the effort by failing sight, and uttered the memorable words, "You see, gentlemen, I have not only grown gray, but blind in your service," and those words defeated the traitorous scheme. The Tower of Victory contains a life-size statue of Washington in the act of sheathing his sword—the sword that was never sheathed until liberty was secured.

The view from the Belvidere, reached by a spiral staircase and capable of holding one hundred persons, embraces a broad expanse of river and mountain scenery, with rich fertile valleys below.

When the thirteen pillars on which the roof rests are adorned with the shields of the thirteen original States of the Union, and the recesses of the interior walls are filled with appropriate bass-relief (as they will be in the future), this will be a monument as rich in historic interest to the lovers of human rights and liberty, as the Pantheon of Paris or the Westminster Abbey of London.

The four bronze figures resting in niches on the east and west walls of the building represent the four arms of the service in the Continental Army —the Dragoon, the Artilleryman, the Rifleman, and the Line Officer—reproducing the exact uniform of each.

The bronze tablet with the figure of Peace explains that

"This monument was erected under the authority of the Congress of the United States and of the State of New York, in commemoration of the disbandment, under proclamation of the Continental Congress of October 18, 1783, of the armies by whose patriotic and military virtue our National independence and sovereignty was established."

Leaving Newburgh the train again skirts the river banks, passing the villages of Marlborough and Milton to Highland Station. Quiet and attractive resting places for the summer can be found at either of these villages and at a very reasonable cost. People who desire the charms of rural life can find them readily here.

HIGHLAND AND POUGHKEEPSIE.

Highland Village, about a mile and a half from the station, has, since the opening of the West Shore Railroad, become well known as a Summer Resort. The Highland Valley Stream, is a musical, dashing mountain rivulet on the banks of which are several good boarding-houses, adding to the charms of the village.

Opposite Highland on the east bank of the river is Poughkeepsie. The name is a corruption of the Indian Apo-keep-sinck, "a safe and pleasant place."

Poughkeepsie is known for its industrial and educational enterprises. The flames of its blast furnaces can be seen, at night, for a distance of thirty miles. Its principal educational institution is Vassar College, a college for young ladies, founded by Matthew Vassar, the original owner of the Vassar Brewing Company. This college is one of the first in this country which recognized the right of woman to an educational plane with man, a theory which originating in America is now accepted by all European colleges. Formerly all communication between the west side of the Hudson and Poughkeepsie was only by a ferryboat. Now the river is spanned by a lofty iron bridge, connecting the great coal fields of Pennsylvania with New England.

The idea of thus spanning the Hudson originated with Harvey G. Eastman, the founder of Eastman's National Business College in Poughkeepsie.

KINGSTON.

Leaving Highland Station, the road gradually ascends the western bluffs. At every point charming views attract the eyes of the traveler. The most richly diversified farming country is now passed through. Mauresa, West Park, Esopus, and Ulster Park, at each of which is a West Shore station, reveal the wealth of a productive country along this part of the route; passing through which we reach Kingston, eighty-eight miles from New York. Before reaching Kingston we cross Rondout Creek, and are greeted with one of the most magnificent views along the entire line. The train thunders over an iron bridge a quarter of a mile long and one hundred and ninety-five feet above the level of the river.

To the right lies Rondout and the broad bosom of the great waterway to the City of New York. To the left rise the purple-draped mountains, and in them and the many boats on the river, matchless beauty and mercantile activity blend together, for this is the terminus of a great waterway—the eastern end of the Delaware and Hudson Canal. The bridge crossed, the train stops at the Union depot of the West Shore, Wallkill Valley and the Ulster and Delaware Railways. The beauty of this building at once impresses the traveler. It is of pure Queen Anne style of architecture, with large airy rooms, quaint gables, dormers, and tall chimneys. The restaurant is one of the best on any railroad in the country; and as every train stops here ten minutes, time is given to take a good lunch. The old city is worthy of a visit for it contains much of interest in relation to the history of the past. Kingston was one of the first settlements in the State, and is justly proud of being the place where the Constitution of the State of New York was adopted and where the first Legislature met. This constitution was framed, in 1777, in the old stone house still standing, built by Colonel Wesel Ten Broeck in 1676, and still stands well-preserved through centuries of change. Many other houses of the same period exist, striking relics of the beginning of American history, and by their quaint appearance linking the past to the present.

The old "Senate House," standing on the west side of Clinton Avenue, near its junction with North Front Street, carries our thoughts back to the first settlement of Kingston by the Dutch in 1614.

The first Dutch Church standing in the old town church yard, where yet rings out to the congregation the silver bell, a casting of plate; contributions of the old Dutch churches, for the founding of this historic bell. In the ringing of this bell you hear the jingle of the silver spoons with which the first seetlers stirred their toddy generations ago. About the year 1657 Andrus Van Slyke was appointed by Governor Peter Stuyvesant as Voorleser (Curate). He organized the Dutch church and three years later in September, 1660, the first ordained minister from Holland, Herman Bloem, began his pastorate and the life of ministerial succession has continued to the present day with good old Dutch stock, men noted for their religious fervor and patriotism.

From this point the tourist gets his first view of the famed and beautiful Catskills, and the silhouette of the mountains is disclosed for a distance of forty miles, lit up at evening by the most gorgeous of sunsets.

Kingston has a supply of pure water by gravity from the mountain side; has two electric railroads connecting the uttermost parts of the city, and attractive sites for rural homes and suburban dwellings. The city is showing a rapid growth in manufacturing, and has a renewed prosperity dating from the opening of the West Shore Railroad, making it one of the foremost towns in the Hudson River Valley.

IN THE WALLKILL VALLEY.

At Kingston connection is made with the Wallkill Valley Railroad, which is owned and controlled by the West Shore. By this road we are carried through one of the most fertile and lovely valleys in the State. The early settlers in this beautiful region were Huguenots, driven from France after the death of Admiral Coligni. It is exceedingly rich in pastoral advantages, and its broad farms, herds of fine cattle browsing in the fields, suggest pure milk, cream, butter, and other material comforts. At the same time it is attractive as a highway affording access to some of the grandest scenery and most charming summer resorts in the country. Direct communication is by this road established for Lakes Mohonk, Minnewaska, and Mountain Rest, and the delightful summer resorts of New Paltz, Rosendale, and Binnewater. The quaint old stone houses, with high, steep-pitched roofs, carry the mind back more than two hundred years, when the thrifty exiles from "La Belle France" settled in New Paltz, and turned the then unreclaimed wilderness into rich farms.

From New Paltz stages run to the striking Shawangunk Mountains and the lake region. By an easy and charming drive of five miles over an excellently constructed mountain road the traveler reaches "Sky Top" as it is now called, the highest point of the Shawangunk Mountains.

This is a summit from which magnificent views of the Western Catskills are obtained.

Behind it lies Lake Mohonk. The first view of the Lake is a ravishing surprise.

Embosomed in rugged and precipitous rocks, its waters spread before the eye as clear and placid as a mirror, broken only into gentle ripples which flash and darken as sunshine and shadow chase each other over their surface. The overhanging cliffs seem to have been hurled together by gigantic hands in some great natural conflict; their scarred sides are draped in many-tinted mosses and lichen; the summits glow with the deep-green of mountain laurel and richly-hued rhododendrons, amid which the delicate arbutus winds its modest tendrils, and over all, the tall mountain pines wave like the plumes of a warrior host.

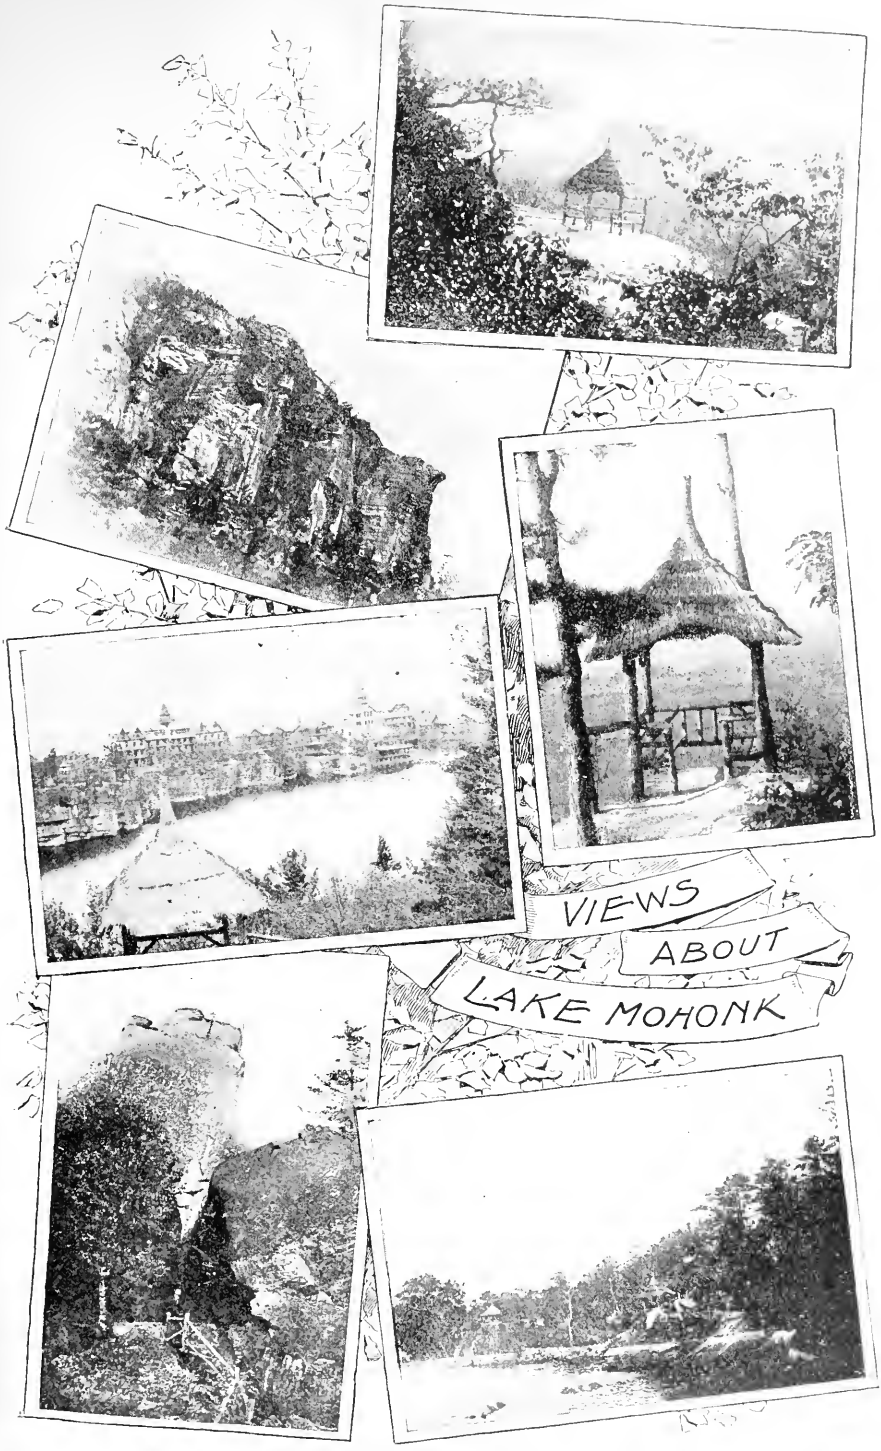
The Lake Mohonk House, a picturesque group of buildings which have been erected from time to time as the increasing popularity of this gem in the mountains demanded, is one of the most charming places for rest and comfort conceivable. Mountain paths carefully made and perfectly safe, wind in every direction to points of interest, without marring the beauty of the scenery. From a thousand acres of farm lands, the hotel is supplied with milk, cream, fresh vegetables and every kind of small fruits, such as strawberries, grapes, raspberries, currants, etc., and apple and peach orchards yield their products for the table in season.

The rules of this Hotel guarantee to such persons as seek above everything else absolute tranquility and physical and mental rest, all that can be desired.

Another most attractive spot by this road made accessible is Lake Minnewaska, set on a mountain top and surrounded by walls of everlasting rock. From the Cliff House and the Wildmere, one hundred and fifty feet above the lake, the eye embraces views of the Housatonic mountains on the east, the Berkshire Hills and Green Mountains on the northeast, the Helderbergs on the north, the Catskills on the northwest, and the Neversink and Shawangunk mountains on the southwest, with stretches of river and valley interblending. Since the West Shore Railroad, by its connections with the roads mentioned, has made these desirable places easily accessible, they have been sought by ever increasing numbers of summer residents.

A FLYING START.



NEW PALTZ STATION—ON WALLKILL VALLEY RAILROAD.

THE ULSTER AND DELAWARE.

At Kingston the West Shore Road makes close connection with the Ulster and Delaware, thus forming a direct route into the heart of this glorious mountain region. This road has been so improved since its connection with the West Shore, that both comfort and safety are combined in the highest degree.

After seventeen miles of a westerly course from Kingston, the Ulster and Delaware Railroad turns sharply to the north, and following the valley of the Esopus, enters the mountains through a gateway formed by Mount Ticetenwyke on the east, and Mounts Cornell, High Point, and Wittenberg on the west.

This group of mountains forms a crescent, and their peaks are four miles distant. This approach is full of interest. The mountains are seen at first dimly in the distance, and seem to be but faint outlines mantled in blue haze.

As we draw nearer to them they stand out in bold relief; one above another they rise majestically, peak after peak, in ever-increasing altitude and magnitude, filling the mind with admiration and awe.

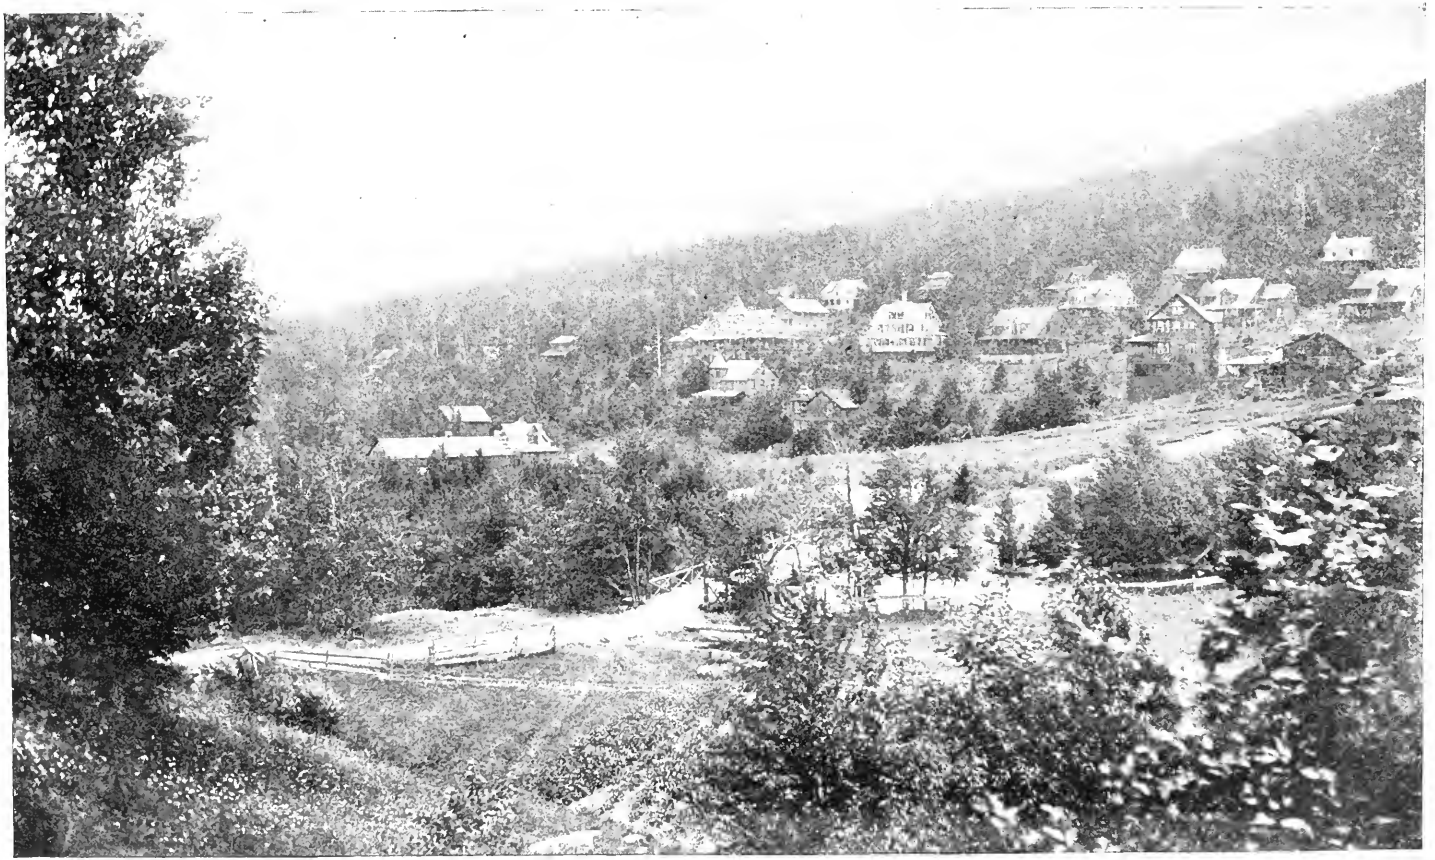
From the train are seen the several hotels of the eastern range, looking in the distance and at that elevation so small that one might think the wind would sweep them from the mountain tops to which they cling, and on which they stand firmly founded on the rock. Reaching West Hurley, eight miles from Kingston, and five hundred and thirty feet above the level of the sea, guests for the Overlook House leave the train, and ride in stages nine miles up the mountain side to the hotel.

Thence we pass quickly to "Shokan," the gateway of the Catskills, as it has been termed; then, still following the Esopus, the train plunges into the Shandaken Valley, the grandest "clove" or notch, as it is called, in the entire mountain range, and by which they are cleft in twain from north to south.

Six miles from Shokan is Mount Pleasant, the real entrance to this glorious valley. Here the giant hills approach each other so closely as to leave barely room for the river and railroad side by side. The overhanging hills flinging their dark shadows on the flowing river, and the hundred echoes from precipice and crag of music of the train as it dashes through the valley, leave imperishable impressions on the mind of the traveler.

The next important point reached is Phœnicia, twenty-six miles from Kingston. Here the mountains are rent asunder by the deep gorge known as "Stony Clove," opening into the Shandaken Valley on the right, and leaving toward Hunter and Tannersville. The mountain which towers over us here is the "Tremper," and at its foot is the "Tremper House," one of the finest and best-kept hotels in the Catskills.

From this point the Ulster and Delaware bears us still deeper into the heart of the Western Catskills. On the right we see Mount Sheridan, Broadstreet Hollow, North Dome, Peck Hollow, Mount Sherrill, and Deep Notch. Stages convey the passenger from Shandaken Centre, through Deep



LOOKING INTO TWILIGHT PARK—HAINE'S CORNERS, N. Y.

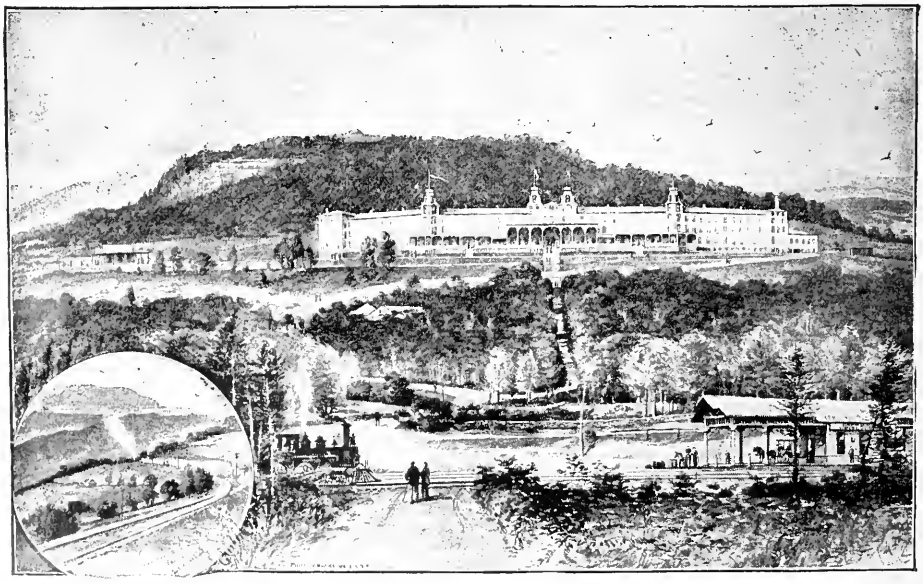
Notch, to West Kill and Lexington, at each of which places are pleasant hotels and boarding houses.

The next spot of interest is "Big Indian." The tradition is still told that here once was an Indian eight feet high. He fell a victim to a horde of wolves after killing several of them, and was buried by his brethren of the forest. A rude statue of him was carved out of a tree near by, but it was afterwards carried away by a freshet—as the restless stream of Time has borne away many a monument of greater value.

From Pine Hill, the next station, one of the most magnificent views of this region is seen. There is scarcely anything in the mountain regions of Switzerland or Norway to surpass it. From the piazzas of the hotels of this section the scene is superb. The Panther mountain rises on the southeast, the Balsam mountain in front, and Rose mountain in the rear.

Close by is Monkey Hill, two thousand five hundred feet in height. From the summit of this hill, the eye takes in a view of more than twenty miles of mountains and valleys clothed in the drapery of light and shadow, cloud and sunlight, ever varying and ever beautiful. From here the train rounds a magnificent horseshoe curve, and then climbs, panting, up the steep ascent, and halts at the Grand Hotel Station, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-six feet above the tide water. Seven hundred feet above the Railroad stands the "Grand Hotel," one of the largest of the system of mountain hostelries. This hotel has a frontage of seven hundred feet, and is all that the most fastidious taste can desire. Its appointments and cuisine are perfect.

Behind the hotel rises the isolated bare-topped summit mountain, or Monkey Hill as it is termed, one thousand feet higher than the elevation of the hotel.



NEW GRAND HOTEL, WESTERN CATSKILLS.

From the summit, easily reached by a well-constructed carriage drive, the visitor obtains a grand and unobstructed view of mountains and valleys. The wildness of original nature is here blended with the improvements of modern civilization. With its summit reaching up into the blue heavens is Old King Slide, and below lie the well-cultured farms and wooded valleys of the Delaware. The range of hills facing the Grand Hotel—Belle Ayr and High Mount—fitly frame the scene, and the valley below is exquisitely formed for the building of Summer homes.

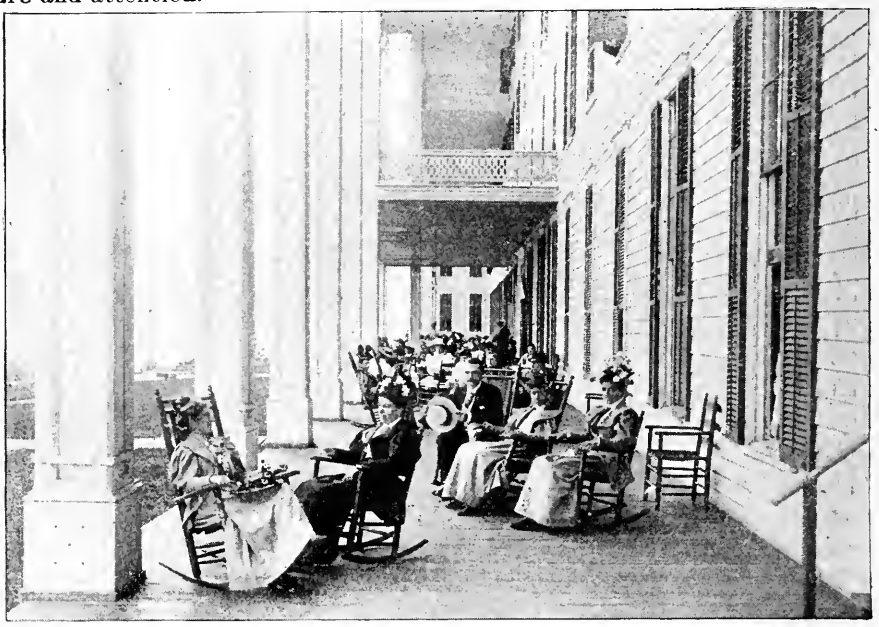
At this point the train takes a down grade. Swiftly it rolls down the steep descent of the western water-shed into the valley of the west branch of the Delaware. We touch at Arkville and Roxbury; thence to Grand Gorge. At each of these beautiful villages excellent Summer accommodation can be secured, and by stages or carriage the charming mountain environs can be daily explored.

Seventy-two miles from Kingston is Stamford, at the foot of Mount Utsayantha. This charming village has been called the "Gem of the Mountains" and the "Saratoga of the Catskills." Situated at the head-waters of the Delaware River, with lofty mountain crags rising abruptly and grandly from the village, it is charming in situation, and most desirable for physical and artistic purposes. The atmosphere is clear and invigorating; the views on every side superb and impressive. Here the seeker for rest and natural restoratives, the poet for themes for his muse, or the artist for inspiration for his pencil, will find unequalled advantages. The Giant Mountain towers three thousand two hundred and three feet into the azure air, and is easily reached by a well laid out driveway from the village. From the tower on this summit we gaze upon a panorama of unparalleled beauty Twenty-eight peaks of the Catskills are seen in bold relief against the sky.

The scene from the heights of the Rhigi, on Lake Lucerne, from which the Swiss Alps are seen, may equal, and perhaps surpass, this in grandeur; but in beauty this view of the Catskills is the peer of any view that great mountain region can present. It is within a comparatively few years that this beautiful spot has been made known to the tourist and the Summer visitor. But for the enterprise of these railroads it would have been to-day, comparatively, terra incognita. Now it has several finely equipped hotels, such as "Churchill Hall," where every modern arrangement for personal comfort is found; large rooms, electric bells, gas in every room, baths, and steam heat furnish city comfort with country charms. This and the Delaware House, Grant House, Greycourt, and others, spare no expense to make their guests comfortable, and to present a cuisine equal to that of the best city hotels. Croquet, lawn-tennis courts, and bowling-alleys furnish enjoyment to adults and children, and thus make it one of the most desirable family resorts in the Empire State.

STONY CLOVE AND CATSKILL MOUNTAIN RAILROAD.

From Phœnicia, by the Stony Clove and Catskill Mountain Railroad, the tourist ascends the steep mountain side, in which ascent, one thousand two hundred and seventy-three feet of elevation are overcome in ten miles of distance, and in connection with the Kaaterskill Railroad, at Kaaterskill Junction, one can quickly and comfortably reach Hunter, Tannersville, the Kaaterskill, Haines Falls, the Laurel House, and the Catskills Mountain House. There are also many smaller hotels and summer boarding houses in the valley of the Upper Schoharie, in which the rest seeker will find excellent fare and attention.



RESTING—HOTEL KAATERSKILL PORCH.

The many advantages of this region may be noted in the enterprise of "Onteora Park." This soft-sounding word means, in the Indian tongue, "Hills of the Sky."

The poetic name was well given. Here within a few hours of New York, we find a region two thousand five hundred feet above the level of the sea, a climate always cool and invigorating, pure spring water, and not one of those pesky mosquitoes who make life on the coast a constant irritation. The wearied brain worker, the artist, the author, the merchant, can here drink full draughts of new life, and find his nerves daily growing steadier and stronger. Near enough to the City to be in constant communication if necessary, yet far enough away to enjoy scenery as lovely as painter's imagination could conceive or poet's words describe. The murmur of brooks over the loose stones, the song of birds in the forests, the shadows of the trees cast by the setting sun, suffuse the body and mind in restfulness, while the lofty hills in solemn silence keep sentinel; and in the distance the silver Hudson gleams, and beyond that, the blue billows of the Berkshire hills are seen.

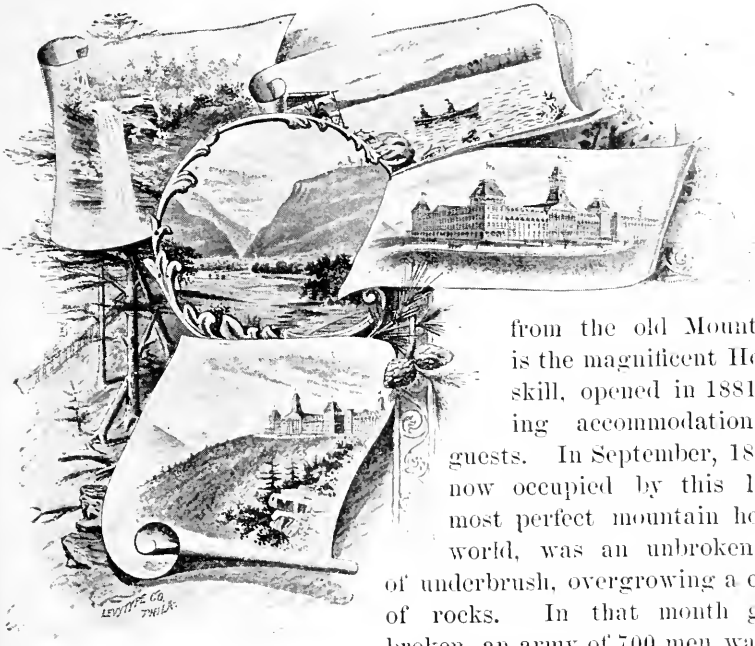
The wild mountain scenery, the deep, narrow valley through which a torrent fed by the snow and ice from the summits of the mountains plunges, are weird and fascinating in the extreme. This route also brings us to the Hotel Kaaterskill, located on the summit of the Kaaterskill Mountain. This hotel, by its location and admirable management, has won both American and European fame.

It was while visiting this romantic spot that Henry Abbey, of Kingston, was inspired to write his exquisite poem, "The Spirit of the Mountain":

"O Spirit of the mountain!
O toiler deep of yore!
Vast is thy past behind thee,
Thy future vast before.
We call thee everlasting,
Our life is like a day;
Are time and tide against thee?
Must thou, too, pass away?"

Sweeping up and over these giant crests upraised during thousands of years, now girdled by railroads, we can but feel that great as is nature, the genius of man is greater, and mind is monarch of matter.



Three miles, by the carriage-drive, or about one by a rugged path over the mountain from the old Mountain House, is the magnificent Hotel Kaaterskill, opened in 1881, and offering accommodation to 1200 guests. In September, 1880, the site, now occupied by this largest and most perfect mountain house in the world, was an unbroken wilderness of underbrush, overgrowing a chaotic mass of rocks. In that month ground was broken, an army of 700 men was employed, and, in face of the most desperate odds, work was steadily prosecuted during the winter, amid bitter storms of intense cold. Ten months later the great hotel was open for the reception of guests; a princely park, containing within its bounds nearly twenty-one square miles of mountain and valley, had been intersected in all directions by well-graded walks and drives; a carriage-road, four miles in length, winding directly up the face of the mountain from Palenville, had been constructed, in spite of the declarations of practical engineers, that the task was impossible; and another sumptuous eyrie, overlooking one of the grandest and most extended views in the world, was open to the public. This great scheme was conceived by one man, George Harding, Esq., of Philadelphia, carried out at his own expense and under his personal supervision, and finally successfully realized through his indomitable energy and perseverance.

The Hotel Kaaterskill Cottage adjoins the Hotel Kaaterskill, increasing the capacity of this famous resort and securing to guests more privacy than is afforded by the hotel proper. Excellent drives lead from the Kaaterskill, through wild wood and forest, over mountain and vale, into the outlying country. The sportsman may indulge his bent in the surrounding forest, and the lover of all that is grand in Nature meets new objects of devotion at every turn. The cuisine is unsurpassed—the milk, butter, etc., being furnished daily from the Kaaterskill farms.

So numerous and varied are the attractions and points of interest to be visited near and from the Hotel Kaaterskill, that an energetic guest could be kept constantly on the go, for twenty consecutive days, visiting a new scene of wonderful beauty each day, and being amply repaid for each separate effort. Of the many fascinating points within easy walking distance of the hotel, none is more worthy a visit than Sunset Rock, half a mile distant. It is a bare table-rock, overhanging Kaaterskill Clove, with an almost sheer descent of 1500 feet. Directly opposite rises, grand and dark, 4000 feet in the air, the Kaaterskill High Peak, offering to view its entire face from base to summit. Its sides are clothed with a royal evergreen mantle, streaked here and there with the ermine of falling water, and woven of whispering pines, dark-hued firs, sturdy spruces, and the stately, sweet-scented balsams, with tops as straight and sharp as lance tips. A magnificent tree standing near the summit might well have inspired the pen that wrote—

> "Thou alone know'st the glory of summer,
> Gazing down on thy broad seas of forest,
> On thy subjects that send a proud murmur
> Up to thee, their sachem, who towerest
> From thy bleak throne to heaven."

Looking down the clove, its embracing mountains form a wondrous frame for the fair picture of the valley of the Hudson, wide-spread beyond, with gleams of water in the distance. Turning toward the setting sun, the glisten of Haines' Falls is seen at the head of the clove, and, grand and sombre, Hunter Mountain rises far inland. While the western sun still bathes the rock in its light, the deep valley below is dark and tremulous with the shadows of evening. The true lover of Nature has no need of artist tongues to tell him that he sees a perfect picture from Sunset Rock; he knows as he gazes that were aught added, or one feature taken from it, its completeness would be marred; and that, though other views may be more extended or more grand, none can be more truly beautiful.

One of the most charming drives from the hotel is down the mountain road, with its "swan's neck" and "horseshoe" curves, to Palenville, and then up the romantic clove, in which there are many tempting bits of tumbling waters, dark pools, sequestered nooks, and grassy glades, to the Kaaterskill and Haines' Falls, the two principal cascades in the Catskills. The last grade near the upper end of the clove is the steepest on the whole road, and on surmounting it, the head of the Great Land Side is crossed. Here, each winter, the road is torn from the hillside and hurled into the abyss, six hundred feet below.

Heretofore the approach to the immediate Catskill region has been by a circuitous, though picturesque route. The distance and time has now been greatly reduced by the construction of the Otis Elevating Railroad, which, in connection with the West Shore and Catskill Mountain Railroad, forms a desirable route from New York and all points to the heart of the Catskills. There has grown up on the summit many beautiful cottages, and settlements, notable among them being: the Ontera Park, Twilight Park, Elka Park, and the Santa Cruz Park.

The Otis Elevating Railroad connects on the edge of the summit with an extension of the Catskill Railroad, so that passengers will now be taken by the fast express trains on the West Shore Railroad to Hotel Kaaterskill and all other points in the Catskill and Tannersville region in from one, to two hours less time than formerly.

Within the past decade this long-secluded region has been brought into touch with the outer world largely through the efforts of Commodore Van Santvoord, George Harding, F. B. Thurber, George Wingate, Mrs. Wheeler, Paul Goepel, and others. It is only since the great hotels and cottage settlements in this region (such as the well-known Twilight Park, near Haines Corners, Onteora and Elka Parks, near Tannersville, and the recently started Schoharie Manor, also near Tannersville), and the more direct approach by railroads have made the hidden beauties of these picturesque mountains accessible to the summer tourist; that the few who formerly ventured to explore their recesses on foot or on horseback have been succeeded by countless thousands of health and pleasure seekers from far and near.

At Laurel House Station, nestled in one of the most romantic of nooks, is the Laurel House, which enjoys the reputation of being one of the best appointed and kept hotel in the mountains. Within one hundred feet of this house, and on its grounds, is the beautiful "Kaaterskill Falls," of which our own William Cullen Bryant sings:

"Midst greens and shades the Kaaterskill leaps
From cliffs where the wood flower clings,
All summer he moistens his verdant steeps
With the sweet light spray of the mountain springs;
And he shakes the woods on the mountain side,
When they drip with the rains of autumn tide.

"But when in the forest bare and bold
The blast of December calls,
He builds, in the starlight clear and cold,
A palace of ice, where the torrent falls,
With turret and arch and fretwork fair,
And pillars blue as the summer air."

The multitudinous attractions of this mountain region thus brought to our doors by the West Shore Railroad, we cannot attempt to describe. It will be better that the visitor, like ourselves, discover them himself. There is the charm of infinite novelty, and the joy of ever fresh scenes filling the senses with delight, which description would deprive of its pleasure.

The artistic nature here finds natural beauty, grandeur, and atmospheric effects worthy of any painter's work—scenes which a Corot would revel in—and which have been reproduced by eminent artists of our own land. Neither for men of genius to depict, or natural grandeur and loveliness as subjects, need the American go from his own beautiful land, or even from the mountain-guarded banks of our own Hudson River.

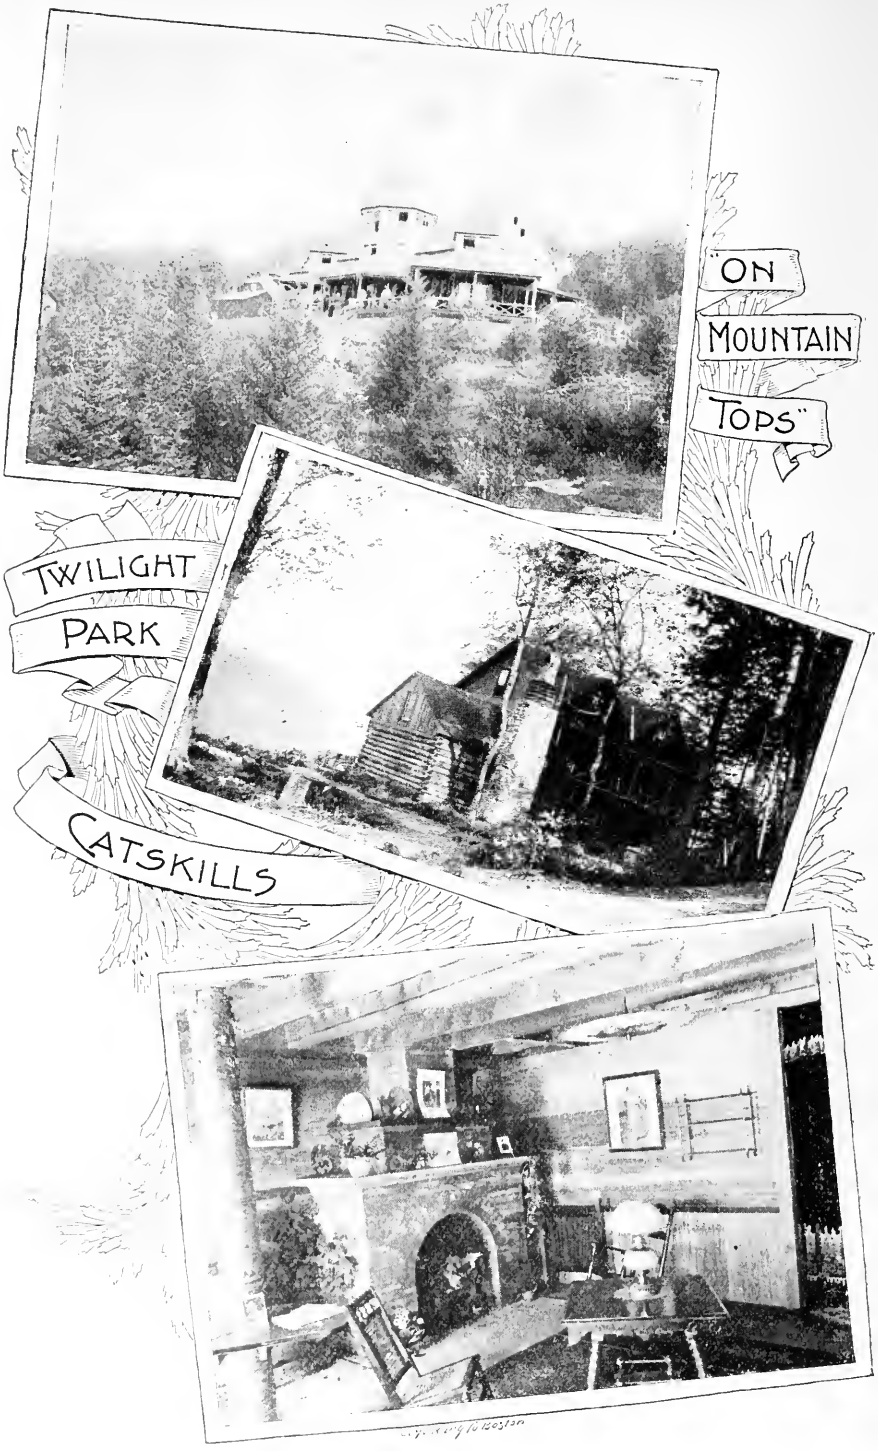
A PRETTY SPOT AT PINE HILL, N. Y.

A NATIVE.

CATSKILL AND BEYOND.

This route, which we have thus described, is the direct one that leads to this beautiful and sublime region. The tourist can continue by the West Shore Road to the town of Catskill, twenty-two miles from Kingston. Rising in terraces from the banks of the river, this town presents so attractive an appearance as to fully justify the name, "The Gem of the Hudson." Here the visitor can enjoy scenery, placid and pastoral, or wild and impressive, within an afternoon's walk. Deep glens, rugged cliffs on which the hemlock waves its dark-green plumes, babbling brooks singing over rocky beds to the river, and rock-bound pools clear as crystal, make ever-changing attraction to both eye and ear. Below sweeps the majestic river; and from the Prospect Park Hotel a view of the entire Catskill range, from Blackhead to Overlook, is unfolded, and when seen in the hazy light of a summer afternoon, or the glow of sunset, is entrancing as artist's or poet's dream.

The hotels and Summer boarding-houses at this delightful resort are replete with every comfort, and most reasonable in rates. As a center from which to make excursions to places of interest, Catskill has unusual advantages. By the West Shore Road Saratoga is easily reached, as also, all eastward points. The Catskill Mountain Railroad, a well-equipped and easily-graded road, touches at the many villages which lie between this town and the summit of the Western Catskills. At every stopping place efficient stage service supplements the railroad. Persons desiring to visit the old Dutch town, Hudson, can go there by handsome steam yachts which run hourly between the two places.

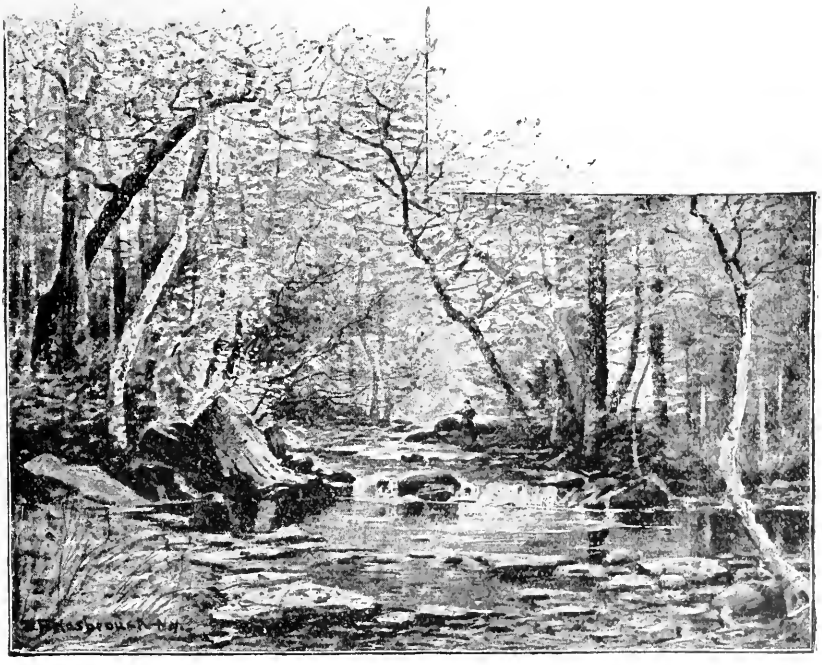


HAINE'S CORNERS, N. Y.—ON KAATERSKILL R. R.

Churches, an opera house, two National banks, telegraph and telephone service make it eminently suitable for those who desire to blend city facilities and country enjoyment together.

Watching one of the wondrously beautiful sunsets on these mountain summits, a son of the Catskills, touched with poetic fervor, wrote:

"In the twilight, in the gloaming;
'Twixt the hours of toil and rest,
In the sunset's mellowed glowing,
Turn we, gazing in the West.
Hidden from our eyes, the sun,
Meanwhile speeding on apace,
From below the horizon flings
Aback his golden rays.
And isles of gold, and seas of gold,
And golden argosies—
Ceaseless change; while, to the soul
Are restful harmonies.
Prodigal of its great wealth, the sky's imparted glow,
Falls down and gloriously transforms the scene below;
And mountains share the radiance,
Lakes shimmer their delight,
Nor doth Eve's glamour end till burn the lamps of night."



EMERY BROOK, ON NEW GRAND HOTEL PROPERTY.

FURLOUGH LODGE, HARDENBURG, N. Y.—Country Residence of Mr. George J. Gould.

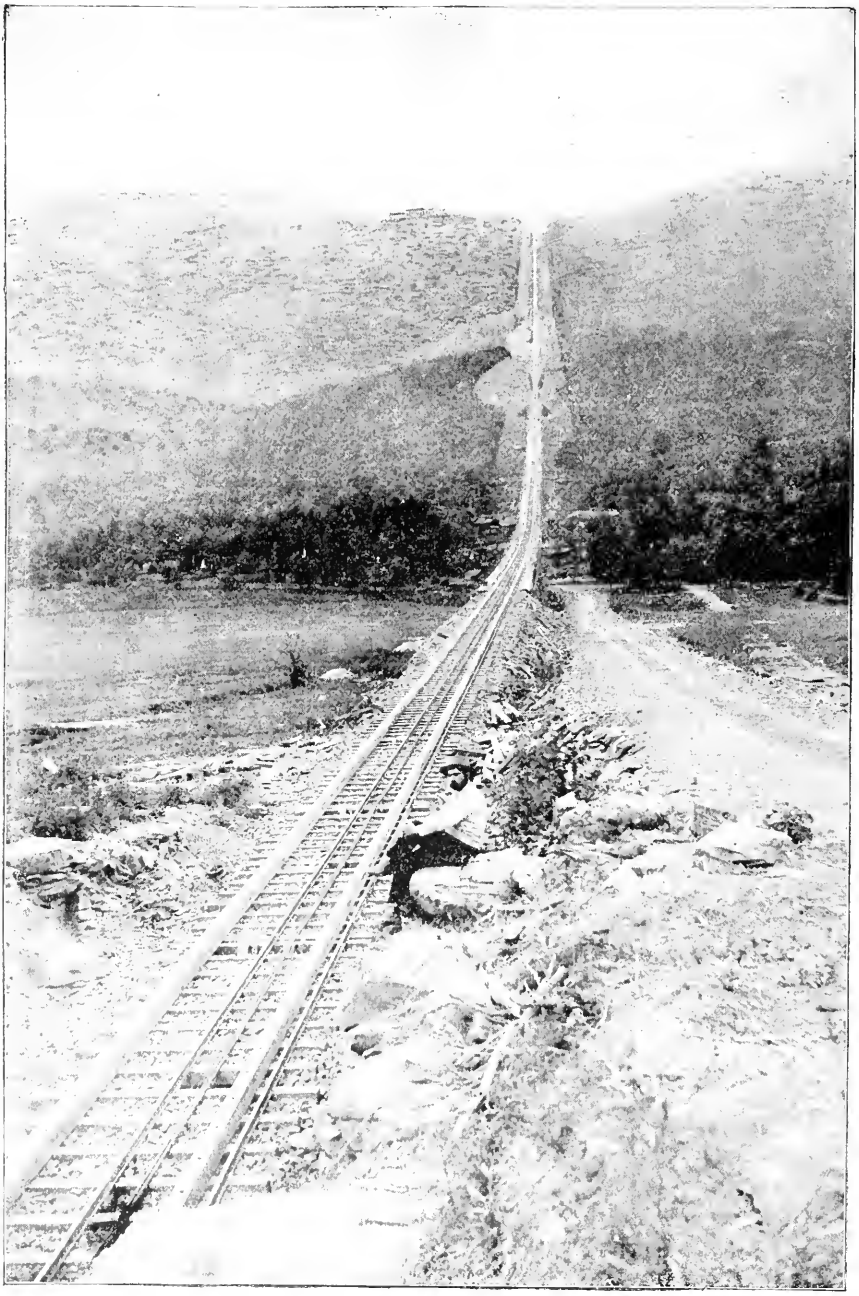
From Catskill, the West Shore Road extends to Albany, a part of the train branching off at Ravena for Utica, Syracuse, Buffalo, Rochester, Niagara Falls, and the West. The city of Albany, the capital of the Empire State is well worth a visit. The State Capitol, a magnificent specimen of architecture, the State Library, the State Arsenal and Armory, are but a few of the many public buildings which repay us for tarrying in this historic city.

From Albany, the West Shore extends to Buffalo, Niagara Falls, and the West, passing through some of the most attractive parts of the Mohawk valley; at Buffalo connecting for Cleveland, Toledo, Columbus, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Chicago; at Niagara Falls for Toronto, Detroit, Chicago, and the West.

A FAIR FISHER IF THE TACKLE HOLDS.

CATSKILL MOUNTAIN RAILWAY AND CAIRO RAILROAD.

The tourist may take at Catskill station, the Catskill Mountain Railway, a narrow gauge of about fifteen miles. This will take him through the pleasant valley of Catskill Creek, by Austins Glen, the Falls of Leeds, and other picturesque scenes. At Cairo Junction, this road connects with the new Cairo Railroad, running to the attractive resorts of the Eastern Catskills. At the base of the Cairo Round Top Mountain, at Otis Junction, it connects with the Otis Elevating Railroad, which climbs to the summit of the mountain, finally reaching its terminus at Palenville, a most delightful village, with charming summer boarding houses, at the entrance of the Kaaterskill Clove.



OTIS ELEVATING RAILWAY.

OTIS ELEVATING RAILWAY.

THE Otis Elevating Railway is a remarkable piece of engineering and is deserving of the traveler's attention. It is the longest road of its kind in the world and the only one in this country. It is provided with ingenious automatic appliances which insure absolute security; and, an ambitious engineer intent on making a fast run would find his efforts balked when the maximum speed—twelve miles per hour—is reached. The two wire cables used to haul the cars weigh in the aggregate twenty tons, and the problem of exact counter-balance of cable and cars has been achieved only in this road. The two cars start simultaneously—one from the bottom and one from the top of the mountain—and meet half-way at a turn-out. The upper car and cable exactly balance the lower car and cable. The length of this road is seven thousand feet; and in that distance an elevation of sixteen hundred and fifty feet is attained. The engineer of this road also designed and built the elevators of the Eiffel Tower in Paris, and those seen at the West Shore Weehawken station, leading to El Dorado on the Palisades above.

At Otis Summit,* the mountain terminus of the Otis Elevating Railway, stands the Catskill Mountain House, on a massive rocky cliff, twenty-two hundred and fifty feet above the river and overlooking the valley of the Hudson. This Hotel enjoys the distinction of being the pioneer as well as one of the best in the mountains; and from its veranda a panorama embracing parts of five States is unfolded.

The park connected with the Hotel has an area of nearly three thousand acres, and includes the North and South Lakes. To stand in the early morning on the piazza of this eagle-perched house and see the sun rise in the East, tipping the mountain crests with crimson light, tinging the fleecy mist-clouds with gold, flashing on the white sails of the craft on the bosom of the river, which glows at the kiss of the sun god, is a scene, once looked at, never to be forgotten.

The lover of poetry may here sit in shady nooks or on craggy heights, which have been immortalized by such American poets as Bryant and Holmes—and all who seek rest from the madding crowd, and desire healthful repose, may find it in the scenes and provinces, only a few of which we have been able to notice in these pages, but all of which will amply answer every need.

*Formerly known as Catskill Mountain Station.

How long he slept he never knew. The merry games he played with the men of old Hendrick Hudson made the flight of time imperceptible.

When he woke again, and with many fears of the wrath of Dame Van Winkle, he descended the mountain. Lo! all was changed. He who had started up the mountain side a young man, returned a gray-beard, and found himself forgotten.

True type is "Rip" of the swift progress of American civilization, which in a few short years has transformed the lonely wastes into thriving towns, and the placid river scarcely cut by a single keel into a thronged highway for the products of far distant States, and the silence of the primeval mountains is now broken, not by the roll of the nine pins of Van Winkle's dream, but by the thunder of the great West Shore Railroad, which is one of the grand achievements of this century.

LEGENDARY.

This is all enchanted ground. It embraces the scenes of that exquisite story, most immortal of all Irving's works, which fascinates the child, holds enchained the adult, and has inspired the dramatist — Rip Van Winkle. It requires but a slight effort of the imagination to see the kindly Rip as the great romancist has pictured him — lover of children and of nature—as he climbed the lofty Kaaterskill, gun in hand, on that summer day which has made him famous. Here still grow the forests which echoed again and again the report of his gun. Here is the moss-covered rock on which he laid his head to rest and fell into his ever-memorable sleep. In the distance he saw the lordly Hudson below, moving on majestically to the sea—the future water-way of a mighty nation to the ocean. Below him lay outstretched a deep mountain glen, lonely and rugged. The sun sank in glory behind the Western hills. Rip falls asleep, for he has not the courage to go back home and meet the sharp tongue of his busy "frau."

Yet, still, romance lives. Poetry lives. Long as men and women have power to feel the charm of the past, will they find delight in wandering over the ground thus made memorable—When:

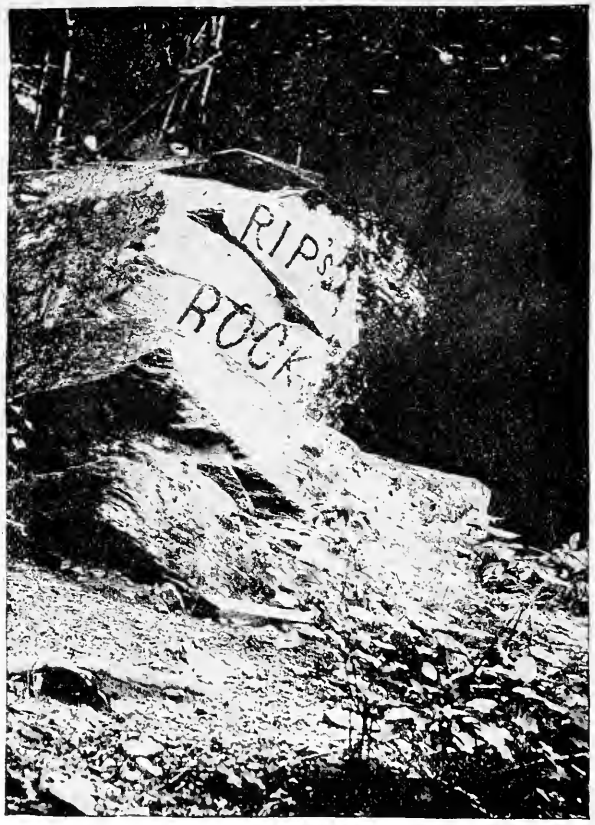
"On the hills they hear the thunder mutter;
The wild wind gathering in the West;
The upturned leaves first whiten and flutter,
Then drop to a fitful rest."

They will hear the long roll of the nine pin balls, and the clash of the strike where old Hendrick and his merry men still play the game of bowls in the mountain hollows.



IN SLEEPY HOLLOW.

RIP'S ROCK.

High upon old Kaaterskill's crest
Is a rock, where one may rest
Safely hid from hue and cry;
Henpecked husband, hither hie.

Come with musket, pipe and prog-
Call some other fellow's dog;
Lest you miss old Hudson's crew,
Better bring a flagon, too.

Grievous ills thy musings mar,
Broomsticks, mops, etcetera;
Spite of time, or place, or name,
Woman's ways remain the same.

Flee from endless days of work,
Flee from tasks that thou would st shirk
Peaceful dream the time away,
Sleep forever and a day.

In this shade of sweet repose
Mortal man forgets his woes
And fulfills his destiny;
Henpecked husband, hither hie.

LAURA SANDERSON.

RETROSPECTIVE.

Returning to our starting point—the Weehawken Station, and to New York, recalling the many places of interest and the magnificent scenery we had seen and enjoyed, we concluded that the West Shore Railroad is worthy of all honor for opening to the seeker for a suburban home, or for summer rest, the most beautiful country conceivable; and that in all its appointments it is an ideal highway to the noblest parts of our Empire State and to the West.

Taking a lingering look at mountain and river at sunrise, the words of Bryant came to our lips:

"Cool shades and dews are round my way,
And silence of the early day.
Mid the dark rocks that watch his bed,
Glitters the mighty Hudson spread,
Unrippled, save by drops that fall
From shrubs that fringe his mountain wall;
And o'er the clear still water swells
The music of the Sabbath bells.

"River! in this still hour thou hast
Too much of heaven on earth to last,
Nor long may thy still waters lie
An image of the glorious sky.
Thy fate and mine are not repose,
And ere another evening close,
And I to seek the crowd of men."

WEST SHORE R. R. CROSSING, KINGSTON, N. Y.

PICNIC AND EXCURSION PARTIES.

SOME OF THE DELIGHTFUL SPOTS ON THE WEST SHORE OF THE HUDSON, FOR ONE-DAY EXCURSIONS, WITH INFORMATION AS TO THEIR LOCATION, ATTRACTIONS, ETC.

Baerna Park.—A small, prominent island, situated in the centre of the Hudson River, about one-quarter of a mile south of the village of Coeyman's, and one and a quarter miles from West Shore Railroad depot. It contains about five acres of ground, and is a very attractive, charming and popular summer resort for excursions from Troy, Albany and neighboring towns. Excursion and picnic parties are of daily occurrence throughout the season. It is very tastefully fitted up with a large dancing pavilion, steam merry-go-round, steam swings, summer houses—in short, everything that goes to make a first-class pleasure-ground. A very handsome little steamer, capable of carrying fifty persons, makes continuous trips between the village of Coeyman's and island every day throughout the season. First-class row-boats are also furnished those desiring them at a very moderate price. To those desiring a day of recreation and enjoyment, there is no resort or pleasure ground on the Upper Hudson equal to Baerna Park Island.

Cole's Grove, on the west bank of the Hudson River, half a mile from West Shore Railroad at Catskill, one hundred and ten miles from New York, and thirty-two from Albany. Boats run every hour between Catskill and Hudson stopping at the Grove. This Grove has beautiful shade, a fine beach, and is unsurpassed for excursions and picnics. It covers about twelve acres of ground, has large covered platform, swings, splendid facilities for boating and bathing. There is a spring of purest ice cold water on the grounds, also a restaurant. No intoxicating drinks are sold. Arrangements can be made for transfer of excursion parties and their supplies between railroad station and grove. For terms and particulars apply to THEO. A. COLE, Catskill, N. Y.

Rockland Lake Park, formerly Sylvan Grove, on the banks of Rockland Lake, one-quarter of a mile from the beautiful Hudson River, and twenty-eight miles from New York.

This well-known and favorite grove is one of the most beautiful and accessible locations in the vicinity of New York for picnics or a day's outing. The grove of stately old oaks, with a landscape of prettily wooded hills sloping gradually to the edge of the lake, give a peculiar charm to this delightful resort, suggestive of quiet nooks and shady bowers, a pleasant and restful retreat from the roar and bustle of the city.

Rockland Lake is fed entirely by springs, and the water is as clear and sparkling as crystal. It is not generally known that this beautiful sheet of water is nearer and more accessible to New York City than any other fresh water lake. The grounds have been fitted up with new and beautiful buildings. A large dancing pavilion, fifty feet wide by one hundred feet long, accommodating two hundred couples, with a first-class restaurant and café, and other buildings for the accommodation of excursionists are provided. A first-class base-ball ground has been laid out. Boating and fishing have always been favorite pastimes at this delightful lake resort, and unexcelled facilities have been provided for their enjoyment. A sea-wall and promenade, extending the entire length of the lake, with convenient landing places, has been constructed, and a fine selection of new row-boats has been procured. A handsome steam yacht, with a carrying capacity of seventy-five to one hundred people, also floating dancing pavilions, will be among the attractions of the lake.

Excursion trains are run directly to Rockland Lake Park over the new railroad extension.

A first-class band will give concerts afternoon and evening, and can also be engaged for picnics and excursions on the lake.

Special rates will be made for parties of twenty-five or more, and still further reductions for societies and other organizations desiring to enjoy a day's outing at this resort.

Parties desiring to make special arrangements, or obtain reduced rates, special train service, or secure the Grove for any day during the season, should communicate with C. E. LAMBERT, General Passenger Agent, West Shore Railroad, 5 Vanderbilt Avenue, New York.

Iona Island.—A picturesque island, forty-one miles from New York, lying to the west of the Hudson channel, with an extent of three hundred acres. The growth of vegetation is two weeks earlier than at points but fifteen miles farther up the river, owing to the sea breeze, which here reaches its limit. It is a favorite resort for picnic parties, and owing to the facilities of approach afforded by the West Shore route, which consumes much less time than by boat, the island is within easy distance to all. To the north of the island on the opposite side of the river, is Anthonys Nose, a rocky promontory, frowning some 1128 feet above the river. Parties desiring the use of the island should communicate with M. G. LYONS, Manager, Peekskill, N. Y., or C. E. LAMBERT, General Passenger Agent, West Shore Railroad, 5 Vanderbilt Avenue, opposite Grand Central Depot, New York.

West Point.—Forty-seven miles from New York, is finely situated, with a commanding view of the Hudson. In the vicinity are many pleasant drives, and cool, leaf-shaded walks. The drive to Cornwall or Storm King, on the north, is replete with interest and pleasing effect, while the highway on the south leads through an equally charming neighborhood to the pretty little village of Highland Falls and the West Shore depot at Cranston's, above which, on an eminence, is Cranston's Hotel. The depot at West Point is situated at the foot of the hill, up which a road leads the visitor to the Military Academy. Here the grounds are extensive, possessing varied charms to the eager sight-seer, and although not open to organized excursion parties, the public generally, by permission of the authorities, are admitted free of charge. If a ramble through this most delightful region creates an appetite for dinner, it can be had at Craney's West Point Hotel.

Lake Katrine.—Ninety-three miles from New York and forty-eight from Albany—a flag station between Kingston and Saugerties. A very pretty lake of pure spring water as clear as crystal, about three-quarters of a mile in length and one-quarter of a mile wide, nestled between two hills which slope gradually to the water's edge. The natural characteristics of Lake Katrine are very like those of Lake Mohonk. The lake is surrounded by groves of stately oaks and tall pines, which afford fine shade. An unexcelled spot for society excursions, Sunday-school picnics, etc. The grounds are fine and large, and are free to Sunday-schools for picnics. The Lake Katrine House is on the west bank, and commands a splendid view of the lake and thickly wooded hills to the east. Swings in the groves, fishing in the lake, plenty of row-boats. The lake is about half a mile back from the railroad station. Eight trains each way stop here, and stages run between the station and lake to and from each train. Communications addressed to C. E. LAMBERT, General Passenger Agent, West Shore Railroad, 5 Vanderbilt Avenue, New York, will receive prompt attention.

Crystal Grove.—West Nyack, N. Y., situated twenty-four miles from New York, and two miles from the picturesque village of Nyack. The grove embraces about twenty acres of natural woodland, besides includes a handsome baseball park. It is fitted up with a large dancing pavilion, merry-go-round, swings, bowling-alley, shooting-gallery, etc. A first-class restaurant and cafe and other buildings for the convenience of its patrons has been provided. Excursions are run directly to the Grove. Parties desiring to make special arrangements as to rates, train service, or to secure the Grove for any time, should apply to C. E. LAMBERT, General Passenger Agent, West Shore Railroad, 5 Vanderbilt Avenue, opposite Grand Central Depot, New York City.

Starin's Park.—The Honorable John H. Starin's beautiful park at Fultonville is thrown open to the public on Tuesdays and Saturdays of each week. These grounds are most beautifully located, a quarter of a mile east of the West Shore Railroad, on the Highlands of the Mohawk, overlooking the Mohawk River. They are provided with many contrivances for the comfort of picnickers. A dancing pavilion, two hundred feet long and about fifty feet wide, most artistically designed, is located in a shady nook in the Park. Tables, chairs, etc., are provided, and are at the service of the public. This is one of the most delightful picnic resorts on the line of the West Shore, and during the summer months, thousands of people in Fultonville and vicinity avail themselves of the privilege for a day's outing in this grove, which is made possible by the generosity of the owner.

CIRCULAR PLEASURE TOURS

THOUSAND ISLANDS.

Alexandria Bay and Round Island.

Nowhere do tranquil waters, moss-covered rocks and tangled verdure, blend themselves more pleasantly into delightful vistas than among the famous Thousand Islands; and nowhere are the facilities for voyaging amid lovely scenery upon excursion steamers, swift yachts or graceful skiffs, so perfect as here upon the peerless St. Lawrence. Nowhere, outside of Venice, does the traveler find such magnificence of illumination after dark as occurs nightly during the summer all along the villa-crowned islets of this enchanted region. The Islands are very numerous, extending from Lake Ontario down the river for a distance of forty miles.

Numbers of large and elegant hotels at Round Island (near Clayton), Alexandria Bay, and intermediate points, are well filled each season with angling parties and lovers of Nature.

As a health resort the Thousand Islands rank very high. Splendid fishing—pickerel, muskallonge, black bass and dory are plentiful.

Steamers make frequent trips between Cape Vincent (thirty miles) and Alexandria Bay (twelve miles), stopping at Round Island and intermediate points. All steamers connect with trains over the West Shore Route, via Utica, where connections are made with the Rome, Watertown & Ogdensburg R. R. to Clayton, and over the West Shore Route, via Syracuse, where connections are made with the Rome, Watertown & Ogdensburg R. R. to Clayton. Steamers of the Richelieu & Ontario Navigation Co. bound down the river through the rapids for Montreal, stop at Round Island and Alexandria Bay every morning, except Mondays.

AUSABLE CHASM.

In Essex Co., N. Y., on the west side of Lake Champlain, is found this grandly beautiful wonder of Nature's workmanship. To describe the Chasm in a few words is no easy task; it can only be seen. It is the canon or ravine through which flows the River Ausable, as it rushes onward from the Adirondacks on the west to empty into Lake Champlain. The Chasm proper is nearly two miles in length. Of it little can be here detailed, but that it is one of those spots that will be preserved in the recollection of the traveler and the searcher after the beautiful in Nature as the equal, in its grandeur and sublimity, of any to be found in America or the Old World. Reached from New York and the South by the West Shore R.R. Ausable Chasm is easily accessible by the D. & H. C. R.R., or Lake Champlain steamers, by stopping at Port Kent, where coaches connect with every boat and train for Ausable Chasm--a short distance over a good road.

THE WHITE MOUNTAINS.

Who that has visited a mountain region, where the summits pierce the clouds, has not experienced the thrilling sensation produced by consort with the spirits of the air—that utter separation from his own world—that flight to the threshold of the Great Unseen, where voices fall upon the ear with startling solemnity, and thoughts too noble for utterance flee away, white winged, to the sea of amaranth and gold? The White Mountains rise from a plateau in Grafton and Coos Counties, New Hampshire, about forty-five miles long by thirty broad, and 1,600 feet above the sea. Some twenty peaks of various elevations rise from the plateau, which is traversed by several deep, narrow valleys. The peaks cluster in two groups, of which the eastern is known as the White Mountains, and the western as the Franconia Notch. They are separated by a table-land varying from ten to twenty miles in breadth. Excepting the Black Mountains of North Carolina, several of these peaks are the highest elevations in the United States east of the Rocky Mountains.

LAKE GEORGE.

This Lake, which is 210 miles from New York City and seventy miles from Albany, is a picturesque sheet of water in Warren and Washington Counties, N. Y. It is 346 feet above sea-level, is about thirty-five miles long and from three-quarters of a mile to four miles wide. It is the most famous and popular of American lakes and deservedly so. With the varied scenery on its banks—here precipitous hills, with their wooded crests fading in the distance; there rugged cliffs lifting high their massive and time-worn bulks above the clear depths of the placid lake; smiling valleys hollowed out between the hills, revealing the proud majesty of more distant heights and the enchanting multitude of tiny islets (said to equal in number the days of the year) lying on its surface—one feels transported with the sublimity of the scene. Lake George is preeminently the finest inland sheet of water on the American continent, and with each recurring year its manifold attractions increase. At Caldwell, on Lake George, are many magnificent hotels and superior boarding houses, while the summer homes of wealthy New Yorkers are to be seen on every island and along the borders of the lake. Custom long since made it a condition binding upon those who visited Saratoga to spend some part of the season at Lake George, and hence it is that one in his rambles about Lake George meets so many faces that were familiar to him in Saratoga. Until within a year or two past the journey between Saratoga and Lake George was accomplished partly by rail and partly by stage coach or carriage; but this has been superseded by the more advanced, civilized, and comfortable method of travel by rail, for the iron bands of the Delaware & Hudson Canal Co's R.R. now cement and unite in a closer union these twin sisters of revolutionary renown. A sail over the lake between Caldwell and Baldwin is one of the most delightful episodes of a trip to Lake George, in contrast with which there is nothing more replete with charming reminiscences. The West Shore Railroad, in conjunction with the Delaware & Hudson Canal Co's R.R., renders this popular resort very easy of access from New York, Philadelphia, and the South.

CHAUTAUQUA LAKE.

This, the farthest west of the New York lakes, is situated in Chautauqua County, and is the highest navigable body of water on the continent, being 1400 feet above the sea. The lake is eighteen miles long, and from one to three miles wide. Its invigorating air, clear waters, excellent bathing, boating and fishing, and the charming drives which the vicinity affords, have all combined to make it a very popular resort. Here the Chautauqua Assembly, organized in 1874, holds its annual meeting every July and August. It is an enterprise designed to combine the recreations of a summer resort with intellectual culture and improvement. It comprises a series of diversified exercises in popular lectures and concerts, brilliant stereoptican exhibitions, organ recitals, Athenian watch-fires, etc. The Chautauqua Assembly also implies a well-graded system of education, leading up from its "Teachers' Retreat" and "School of Languages" to the C. L. S. C. (Chautauqua Literary and Scientific Circle) and Chautauqua University, the "Teachers' Retreat" is a three weeks' meeting, held every summer, at which lectures are given and scientific subjects discussed by able specialists, while the School of Languages is a summer school of six weeks, designed to illustrate the best methods of teaching languages. The C. L. S. C. is an association for social and intellectual improvement, with a four years' course of reading in history, literature, science and art, so judiciously arranged as to embrace the principal subjects of a college curriculum. Chautauqua University is a provision for non-resident students who desire to take a thorough university education while at home and engaged in business, and who are able to devote two or more hours daily to earnest study. But the reader must not be impressed with the idea that life at this beautiful lake is all study, nor must he expect to meet with serious-faced, deep-brown-study-countenanced people only. While Point Chautauqua and Chautauqua are preferred by the more serious, Lakewood, a few miles distant, is more congenial to the lover of harmless gaiety. The stranger will enjoy the shady drive from Jamestown to Mayville, and he will miss a beautiful sight should he omit to take the trip by steamer from Jamestown through The Narrows. Trains on the West Shore R.R. make connection with trains on Western New York & Pennsylvania R.R., and with the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Railway to and from Chautauqua Lake.

COOPERSTOWN (Otsego Lake).

This popular resort is situated at the foot of Otsego Lake, near the outlet of the Susquehanna River, and is ninety-one miles from Albany. The town is beautifully located high up in the mountains; possesses a clear, bracing atmosphere and charming scenery, and attracts annually thousands of visitors. "It is one of the Meccas of America," for here was once the home of J. Fenimore Cooper, and amid these scenes he wrote those wonderful American stories which have given him imperishable renown. This delightful resort is accessible by the West Shore Route, in connection with the Delaware & Hudson Canal Co's R.R. Close connections are made in the Union Station at Albany. Cooperstown may also be reached via the West Shore Railroad to Fort Plain (from which point stages run every day, except Sunday, leaving Fort Plain at 1.30 P. M.; fare $1.50. Upon notice, West Shore conductor will telegraph ahead for accommodations in stage), or by the West Shore Railroad, to Kingston, Ulster and Delaware Railroad to Stamford, carriage to West Davenport, thence railroad to Cooperstown, a very popular route.

ADIRONDACKS.

The general elevation of the Adirondacks surpasses any range east of the Rocky Mountains. More than five hundred mountains, wild and savage in appearance, range themselves in picturesque confusion, for the most part covered with the primeval forests, the highest only exposing their rock-bare summits. Hundreds of beautiful lakes lie in the valleys, at high elevations above the sea. A writer in "Picturesque America", describes the lakes as "all lovely and romantic in everything except their names; and the scenery they offer, in combination with the towering mountains and the old and savage forest, is not surpassed on earth." Fine hotels and well kept boarding houses are now found throughout the region, and every year witnesses an increased number of tourists, while there is a very large yearly addition to the number who make their summer homes in this delightful wilderness. Chief among the attractive resorts are Blue Mountain Lake, Raquette Lake, Forked Lake, and Long Lake, reached by the picturesque Adirondack Railway. The tourist leaves Saratoga by this route, arriving at North Creek, thence by six-horse Concord coaches through to Blue Mountain Lake, connecting with the new line of steamboats through Blue Mountain Lake, Eagle Lake, Utowana Lake, and Marion River to principal camps on Raquette Lake. The Adirondack Railway also affords the nearest approach to Schroon Lake and Lake Luzerne—connections being made at Hadley with free carriages to the Luzerne hotels, and at Riverside with coaches for Schroon Lake and Chestertown. Through tickets to the resorts named can be procured at ticket offices of the West Shore Railroad. Further information can be had by addressing J. W. BURDICK, General Passenger Agent Adirondack Railway, Albany, N. Y.

The elegantly equipped train service of the West Shore Railroad renders the Adirondack resorts more comfortably accessible than ever. By this line, during the season, handsome Drawing-Room Cars run through between Saratoga and New York, Long Branch, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Washington.

MONTREAL.

Montreal, "the Queen of the St. Lawrence," ranks among the most beautiful cities of the continent. It is built on an island of the same name, at the confluence of the Ottawa and St. Lawrence Rivers, which, from its fertility, has been called the Garden of Canada. The St. Lawrence is one and a half miles wide at this point, and the entire river front is lined with lofty and massive walls, quays and terraces, of gray limestone. The principal buildings are of the same material, which is of a delicate, neutral tint, very pleasing to the eye. Architecturally, many of these are very fine, the Cathedral of Notre Dame especially, being of great size and elegant design, is well worth a visit. The view from one of the towers, in which hangs the great bell, is very extensive and interesting. Other places of note are: The Jesuit College, McGill College, the Post-Office, New Court House, Bank of Montreal, Bank of British North America, Champ de Mars, and Bon Parteur Nunnery.

NIAGARA FALLS.

It seems presumptuous to attempt a description of these world-renowned Falls in a meagre sketch, as volumes portraying their grandeur and magnificence might be written, and yet fail in conveying to the perception a clear and succinct outline of their wonderful proportions and great sublimity. To be properly appreciated they must be visited, and when once viewed the recollection of the visit will linger long in the memory. The Falls of Niagara are twenty-two miles from Buffalo, or within a day's ride of New York. The hotels of this resort compare favorably with the more modern and pretentious ones at the Eastern watering places, while the drives and walks are excellent. The place abounds in objects of interest, and is visited annually by thousands of people from all parts of the world. The West Shore Railroad offers the most comfortable accommodations, with Drawroom and Sleeping Car service between Niagara Falls, Boston and New York.

RICHFIELD SPRINGS.

These springs, long and favorably known, are in Otsego Co., N. Y., and are accessible by rail from Utica, or via Albany or Cooperstown. Next to Saratoga Springs, they are, perhaps, the most widely known, and enjoy the most liberal patronage. The hotels are numerous, and the attractions of the place are many and varied. The village of Richfield Springs is situated on a narrow plain near the head of Schuyler's Lake, which is five miles in length and a mile and a quarter at its greatest breadth. This little lake is surrounded by high hills, and, being but a mile from the springs, forms the principal attraction for visitors.

SARATOGA SPRINGS.

This "Queen of American Watering-places" is located within an hour's ride of Albany, and enjoys a greater distinction than any other resort on the American continent. Its resident population is about 9,000, but during the season of pleasure travel, which extends from June 15 to September 15, its population frequently exceeds 30,000. The name Saratoga (from the Indian Saraghoga) signifies "The Place of the Herrings," which formerly passed up the Hudson into Saratoga Lake. In all, there are twenty-eight springs (including six spouting) at Saratoga; some chalybeate, others impregnated with iodine, sulphur and magnesia, and all powerfully charged with carbonic acid gas. The medicinal properties of these waters were known at an early date to the Indians, as has been demonstrated by subsequent events. Several of the springs are cathartic; some are taken as a tonic, while others are utilized for bathing. The wonderful cures effected by these springs induced their owners, several years since, to engage in the business of bottling the waters, until now the industry has assumed such immense proportions that the waters may be found in all parts of the country. But while the waters of Saratoga, and the clear, balmy, atmosphere of the entire region, have proved valuable auxiliaries to the development of that far-famed resort, the large and magnificent hotels, of which there are many, have contributed largely to the name and fame of Saratoga. These hotels are located principally on Broadway, a broad and well-kept boulevard, lined on either side with tall and stately elms and picturesque promenades. The hotels are managed with great liberality, and are furnished throughout in the most sumptuous manner, excelling in magnificence those of any other summer resort in the world. At the height of the season hops are held at each of the large hotels every night, while from sunrise to sunset the sweet and melodious strains of music vibrate upon the ear at every turn, rendering a sojourn at this resort one of indescribable pleasure. The marvelous growth and popularity of Saratoga is due also to the excellent facilities for travel provided by the Delaware & Hudson Railroad, which for years was the only line of communication with it. The numerous trains of this company arrive and depart with the greatest regularity, and, equipped as they are with the latest and most approved appliances for speed and safety, for comfort and pleasure, they meet fully and completely all the requirements of the service. Special Saratoga trains, via West Shore Railroad, will run between Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Long Branch, New York, and Saratoga, making quick time, and with through Drawing-room Car Service.

The Grand Union at Saratoga, the largest and finest Summer Hotel in the world, accommodates fifteen hundred people.

SHARON SPRINGS.

This "Baden-Baden of America" as it has been recently denominated, is a favorite summer resort, of easy access. It is a village of Schoharie Co., N. Y., situated in a narrow valley, surrounded by high hills, and is noted for its mineral springs, of which the most prominent are chalybeate, magnesia, white sulphur and blue sulphur. The magnesia and white sulphur springs bear a close resemblance to the White Sulphur Springs of Virginia, and the waters of the former are used freely. The specialty of the place, however, is its baths, of which there are a great variery, of wonderful curative power. These springs and baths came into notoriety a few years since, and, with a full knowledge of their superiority and, value, and anticipating the wants and needs of the public, the managers of the Delaware & Hudson Railroad sagaciously planned for the immediate development of the place by largely increasing their train facilities, and offering other inducements for permanent and temporary settlement. The result is that to-day, Sharon Springs, like Saratoga, has its annual rush of visitors, with through trains from New York in connection with the West Shore Railroad; with mammoth and costly hotels, shaded walks and drives, and everything that tends to encourage and invite a summer sojourn. Sharon Springs can also be reached via West Shore Railroad to Canajoharie, from which point stages run daily, except Sunday, leaving Canajoharie at 1.00 p.m.; fare, $1.00. Upon notice, conductor of West Shore Railroad will telegraph ahead for accommodations in stages.

TRENTON FALLS.

These falls are situated sixteen miles north of Utica, on West Canada Creek—an affluent of the Mohawk. The Indians named them Kuyahora, signifying "Slanting Water." The descent of the stream (312 feet in a distance of two miles) is made by a series of cascades, five in number, which have worn a deep channel in the limestone hills, some two hundred feet below the level of the surrounding country. The ravine is very narrow, and at low water is easily traversed along its base by a path, constructed and kept in good order. The principal falls are Sherman Fall, High Fall, Milldam Fall, Alhambra Fall and Rocky Heart—met with successfully in the passage up stream. The rock strata of the gorge present many curious specimens, which cannot fail to excite admiration.

INDIANS BRINGING SIR WILLIAM JOHNSON, THE FIRST WHITE VISITOR, TO THE SPRINGS—1767.

Old and New Saratoga

"SIR WILLIAM JOHNSON! Sir William Johnson! Every writer on Saratoga begins with Sir William!" This was the exclamation of one excitable but patriotic citizen of the beautiful Spa at the foot of the Adirondacks when the writer chanced to mention Sir William as one of the first white visitors to the now world-famous springs. Yet, for the sake of the general public, which is not so familiar with the pages of these local chronicles as to be wearied with Sir William's name, Saratogians doubtless will forgive one more allusion to that tireless friend of the Indian and enemy of the French, who makes so conspicuous and remarkable a figure in the pioneer history of Northern New York.

Beginning, then, in traditional manner, with Sir William, we find him in 1738, at the age of twenty-three, a raw young Irishman, of good family, on his way across the Atlantic to take charge of the newly-purchased estate of his uncle, Captain Peter Warren (afterward Sir Peter Warren, admiral in His Majesty's navy), in the Indian wilderness of the Mohawk Valley. A little later we find him rapidly getting rich as an Indian trader, and at the same time winning the complete confidence and lasting friendship of the red men, in his official capacity as Indian agent under Governor George Clinton;* while this friendship was presently cemented, after the death of his wife, Catherine, by his romantic marriage to the Indian princess, Molly Brant, sister of the celebrated chieftain, Thayendanegea.† Again, in 1755, we find this remarkable man become suddenly world-renowned, winning at the same time a victory over Baron Dieskau at Lake George, and the distinction of knighthood from the King. At a still later period, a few years prior to the Revolution, he appears in a new role, as a distinguished baronet—still a pioneer, and the trusted friend of the Indians, but enfeebled and tortured by ailments. It is this stage which brings him to Saratoga Springs, on the recommendation of his warrior friends.

* Such was the esteem of the Six Nations for him that, when he declined longer to act as superintendent of Indian affairs, because the New York Assembly refused to reimburse him for any part of the £2,000 he had advanced for the Colony, a delegation of warriors made a personal appeal to Governor Clinton that Johnson might be sent back to them. "We had him in war," declared Hendrik, the famous Mohawk chieftain, "when he was like a tree that grew for our use, which now seems to be falling down, though it has many roots. His knowledge of our affairs made us think him an Indian like ourselves . . . For he has large ears, and heareth a great deal; and what he hears he tells to us. He has also large eyes, and sees a great way, and conceals nothing from us." One-half of Colonel Johnson, the Indian declared, belonged to the Governor and the King, but the other half belonged to the red men.

† This marriage, legal and proper so far as Indian ceremonial went, Sir William preferred not to consider as marriage in his last will, where he mentions and severally provides for the "eight children of mine by Mary Brant," but designates her as "my housekeeper." Through life, however, he loved and cherished her as his wife.

"For years," says an authority, "he had been subject to dysentery, which often prostrated him upon his bed for weeks together. . . . It was during one of these attacks, in the summer of this year [1767], that he was induced to visit a medicinal spring (now known as the High Rock, at Saratoga Springs, N. Y.), the peculiar properties of which had recently been brought to his notice by the Mohawks who passed by it yearly in their hunting excursions.

"Accompanied by his Indian guides, the baronet set out on his journey the twenty-second of August, and passing down the Mohawk in a boat soon reached Schenectady. At this place Sir William, being too feeble either to walk or ride, was placed on a litter and borne on the stalwart shoulders of his Indian attendants through the woods to Ballston Lake. Tarrying overnight at the log cabin of Michael McDonald, the party, accompanied by McDonald, plunged again into the forest, and, following the trail of Indian hunters along the shore of Lake Saratoga, and its chief tributary, the Kayaderosseras, reached their destination. Close to the spring, for the comfort of the invalid, a rude bark lodge was erected; and in this primitive hotel reclined the first white man, of whom we have any knowledge, that had ever visited the springs.* The popularity of Saratoga Springs as a watering-place may be said to date from this visit. For, although the baronet was not benefited as much as he anticipated—perhaps from the shortness of his stay—yet the fact of so distinguished a personage as Sir William having been even partially restored by the water soon became noised through the country; others were induced to make the trial; new springs were discovered; and, thenceforth, the Springs became the resort of those who were in pursuit of health or pleasure."†

The region about Saratoga Lake, including the present Saratoga Springs, was a favorite hunting-ground of the Six Nations, and especially the Mohawks, long before Sir William or any other "paleface" had set foot in the favored valley. The "High Rock Spring" was the one known to these children of the forest, and it is said that they learned of its medicinal qualities by observing the fondness of wild animals for the waters. The Indians henceforth regarded the healing spring as a special gift of the Great Spirit to his children, the red men, and one can readily understand how large a place Sir William Johnson must have had in their hearts to induce them deliberately to brave the probable wrath of the Great Spirit by sharing with one of another and a hated race the benefits of this, their private and exclusive blessing.

The name Saratoga, or "Se-rach-ta-gue," although a good Indian title, signifying "the hillside country of the great river," did not originally apply to the present site of Saratoga Springs. In 1684 the original Se-rach-ta-gue

* It is doubtful whether this honor can be claimed for Sir William. In August, 1642, as a prisoner of the Indians, and again in 1646 as an accredited embassador to them, the gentle Canadian, Father Jogues, traversed the Kayaderosseras trail, leading past the Springs, and it is not improbable that he drank the waters. And there are indications that other Frenchmen may have preceded Sir William. Indeed, Sir William himself in a letter tells of a sick French officer whom the Indians conducted from Fort Carrilon to the Springs prior to his own visit.

was sold by the Mohawk chieftains to Peter Schuyler and six other citizens of Albany, but this tract extended no further west than Saratoga Lake, whereas the present village is located several miles beyond this body. "Kayaderosseras" was the original Indian designation for the country comprising the present watering-place, and the transferrence of this tract to the whites was first effected by a deed from the Mohawk chiefs dated Oct. 16, 1704. In 1702 another part of Kayaderosseras had been deeded by the Indians to David Schuyler and Robert Livingston, Jr., but these persons were induced to release their claim in favor of the grantees of the 1704 purchase, and, at length, on "this Second of November in the Seventh Year of our reign, Annoque Domini, 1708 . . . Ann, by the Grace of God, of Great Britain, France and Ireland, Queen, Defender of the Faith, &c.," by "these patents," to her "loving subjects, Manning Harmanse, Johannes Beekman, Rip Van Dam and Bridget May Buckley, Peter Faucanier, Adrian Hoghland, Johannes Fisher, John Tudor, Jons Hoghland, John Stevens, John Tatham and Sampson Broughton," doth grant and confirm "all that tract of land situate, lying and being in the County of Albany, called Kayaderosseras, alias Queensborough."*

The acquisition of Kayaderosseras by the shrewd Dutchmen appears to have been one of those too frequent impositions upon the simple savages—in this case a swindle almost as gigantic and atrocious as that of Irving's fabulous Mr. Ten Breeches, who, stipulating to pay twenty-four dollars for that part of Manhatta which his breeches would inclose, cut his abundant nether garments into narrow strips and belted the entire island. So the Mohawks, when they signed the Kayaderosseras deed, understood that the document conveyed "land enough for a good-sized farm," and were very much astonished, and very greatly troubled, and exceedingly indignant to discover that "for a few baubles" they had parted with their magnificent hunting-grounds "containing half a million acres." They refused to confirm the deed for more than half a century, until, at length, in 1768, their old friend, Sir William, persuaded them into it.

Several years prior to the Revolution, in March, 1772, "about the time the first white settler was building his rude cabin at the Springs," the Saratoga patent of 1684 and the Kayaderosseras patent of 1708 were merged into one, and the united territories rechristened as the "District of Saratoga"—still a part of Albany County. And thus "Kayaderosseras," the ancient and picturesque name of Saratoga Springs, disappeared from history.

In February, 1771, a partition occurred between the owners of the Kayaderosseras patent, and lot No. 12, containing all the present springs of Saratoga, fell to the share of Rip Van Dam. Upon the death of Rip, soon after, his executors sold the lot to Jacob Walton, Isaac Low and Anthony Van Dam. Low being a Tory, his portion was forfeited to the State after the Revolution, and sold to Henry Livingston and his brothers, while in 1793 Anthony Van Dam disposed of his interest to Jacob Walton. Thus Walton and Livingston became the owners of the soil.

In the summer of 1771, Dirk Schouten built the first cabin in Saratoga Springs, and to him is accorded the honor of being the first white settler. Scarcely had he become well established in the place, however, when a quarrel with the Indians forced him to depart. In 1774, John Arnold, of Rhode Island, came to the Springs with his family, and converted Schouten's deserted cabin into a rude tavern—the first hotel in Saratoga—which he occupied for two years. Samuel Norton succeeded him, but deserted the Springs during the Revolution, and for six years of the war period the place was without a single white resident. In 1783 a son of Norton returned to the Springs and remained until 1787, when the Schouten cabin passed into the possession of Alexander Bryant. The latter improved the place by the erection of two more log cabins, one of which was his blacksmith shop. In 1783 General Schuyler cut a road from old Saratoga, now Schuylerville, to the Springs, and the following year built for himself a rude summer-house near the High Rock. In 1789 the advent of Dr. Clement Blakesley and Gideon Putnam, a relative of Gen. Israel Putnam, reinforced the small population of the clearing about the famous High Rock, and in 1790 Benjamin Risley came from Vermont and kept tavern in the Schouten house, while Bryant maintained a rival hostelry in the cabin he had built.

The first structure which could be dignified by the name of hotel was erected by Gideon Putnam in 1800 on the present site of the Grand Union, the original pine forest being cleared away by him to make room for the house. The building was seventy feet in length and was known at the time as "Putnam's Folly," although the number of visitors who patronized it soon demonstrated the wisdom of its proprietor. In 1815, Congress Hall, a still larger hotel, was erected, and in 1823 the original United States Hotel was begun. On April 9, 1819, the township of Saratoga Springs was set off, while on the 17th day of April, 1826, the village of Saratoga Springs was incorporated. In 1833 a railroad was built between Schenectady and Saratoga—the second passenger railroad in the United States, and from this time, with access to the Springs made easy, the fame of America's greatest watering-place grew and spread abroad. Where the deer and panther paused to enjoy a healing draught, and the red man erected his lodge to cure his sicknesses, is now the scene where wealth and fashion seek rest and recreation, the correction of abuses from too high living, or a relief and variation of the heat, strife, turmoil and brilliant excitements of social life in our cities.

The Saratoga Springs of to-day, although a town of more than twelve thousand inhabitants, still maintains its autonomy as a simple "village," its wise protectors not being willing to sacrifice the idea of rest, quiet and rural life suggested by that name for the notoriety and bustle of a city. And, indeed, the famous Spa is entirely devoid of every vestige of the noisome and utilitarian features of a manufacturing or active commercial town. No factory or bustling industry here finds encouragement. Other towns and cities may erect the machinery to minister to the innumerable necessities of modern civilization, but here is a spot kept as free as possible from man's tiresome activity, where the weary and nauseated of the world may rest and recuperate and cure their ills by draughts of unadulterated medicines, fresh from Nature's own dispensary.

While the most remarkable feature of Saratoga is and ever must be its world-famous mineral springs, yet with these eliminated it would remain a most delightful and desirable place—one of the most picturesque and healthful nooks on the planet. The soil is sandy and porous, the climate is cool and dry in summer and cold and dry in winter, with the bracing and balsamic qualities of the Adirondacks but without the rude severities of the higher latitudes. Saratoga is famous as a summer watering-place, but many will be surprised to learn that it bids fair soon to become equally well known as America's most popular and healthy winter resort—especially suited to invalids.

The beautiful valley, wherein sits the Springs, is broken by numerous wooded hills, and is flanked by the winding Kayaderosseras River and the picturesque Saratoga Lake, a body two and one-half by nine miles in dimensions, and famous for its black bass. A magnificent drive—the continuation of Union Avenue—leads from the village to the lake, while a recent innovation in the shape of an electric tramway leads over the same course, but fortunately remains for the most part out of sight and hearing of the drives. The beautiful Congress Park is situated quite in the village, while on its outskirts begins Woodland Park, a magnificent range of wooded hills and valleys, covering nearly two thousand acres, and always open to the public. Indeed, the entire village of Saratoga Springs is almost a park in itself, all its broad and well-kept streets being lined with splendid elms and other trees. On North Broadway a generous strip of green forms a border on either side between the driveway and the walks, while beyond the walks, each yard forms a small but beautiful park. On Union Avenue a splendid row of elms in the middle of the thoroughfare divides it into two broad, smooth and dustless double driveways. The effect of all this is inconceivably restful and delightful.

Besides its natural and made beauties of landscape, and the elegant architecture of its cottages, the most notable features of America's great Spa are its hotels and the springs. Considering the elegance, number, and immense proportions of its hotels—some of them ranking among the very largest in the world—one finds it almost impossible to realize that less than a century ago two log cabins provided the only accommodations for visitors. The Grand Union, the oldest of the great hostelries, is the direct descendant and representative, so to speak, of the original Putnam House.* After Putnam's death extensive additions were made and the new house re-named the "Union," which name it bore through a long period until it was finally rebuilt in its present proportions by the late A. T. Stewart and christened the "Grand Union." The "merchant prince" furnished and decorated the great house in his usual magnificent style, one of the notable features being Yvon's great picture, "The Genius of America," on a canvas twenty-two by thirty-five feet, which graces one end of the large ballroom. Both the Grand Union and the great United States Hotel are built to enclose three sides of a large interior wooded court or park, several acres in extent, the arrangement being the most healthful and attractive imaginable.

* The crude and curious sign of the original house, "Putnam and the Wolf," representing the famous scene of Gen. Putnam descending into the wolf's den, has been preserved, and can still be seen swinging on the rear balcony of the Grand Union

The United States Hotel, since its erection in 1823, has passed through various changes and enlargements, until the present huge structure was entirely rebuilt in 1874, the ground having been cleared by fire. Congress Hall, one of the oldest as it is one of the largest hotels, has passed through a similar process of evolution. Other important hotels, the Windsor, Columbian, American, Worden House, and various others, belong to a later period. Most of these huge hostelries are open only during the hot season —about three months; the Worden House, however, is an exception to this rule, remaining open and maintaining the standard of its appointments throughout the year.

Saratoga has also several important Sanitariums, conducted on the hotel principle, and these are patronized not merely by invalids or those requiring medical advice, but by many seeking recreation and pleasure, who prefer, however, a spot more restful and quiet than the bustling hotels. Oldest and largest of the institutions of this kind is Dr. S. E. Strong's Sanitarium, founded in 1855 by Dr. S. S. Strong, the father of the present proprietor. This large establishment combines the conveniences of the hotel with the retirement and quiet of the home, and is newly furnished with a complete system of baths—Russian, Turkish, plunge, and hot and cold mineral. These apartments are floored, roofed and walled with decorative tile in Oriental patterns. Another feature is the roof promenade and sun-parlor, which are peculiarly beneficial for both summer and winter treatment.

Another large sanitarium is that of Dr. Robert Hamilton on Franklin Street, where pleasure guests as well as patients are received. Dr. Hamilton in years past built two very large institutions, both of which were burned to the ground. Still another sanitarium is operated by Dr. Valencourt Deuell, who combines the Carlsbad system of dietetics with the use of Saratoga waters.

In the number and excellent variety of its mineral waters Saratoga is without a rival among the world's famous watering places. It contains no less than twenty-seven important springs, each with peculiar and distinct medicinal qualities, besides twelve or fifteen other smaller or undeveloped waters. The special peculiarity common to them all is the very large amount of carbonic acid gas which impregnates the water and impels it to the surface. The force of this is such that when the stronger springs are tubed to permit the flow of but small streams, the water shoots up into the air, forming beautiful fountains.

The "High Rock," the original Indian spring, received its name from the fact that the stream bubbled up through the centre of a rocky formation (undoubtedly formed by deposits of the mineral in the water), about four feet in height. This rock was removed from its place in 1865, and excavations made beneath, resulting in the discovery, four feet below the surface, of the well-preserved embers of a fire. The rock formation above must all necessarily, therefore, have been deposited since the advent of man in the Saratoga Valley. The historic rock which characterizes this spring was afterward readjusted to its old position.

The "Red Spring," in point of age, is the second spring known, it having been discovered in 1770. It is especially recommended for cutaneous diseases and is administered externally in mineral baths, hot or cold, as well as taken internally like the other waters. A commodious bath-house has been erected by the owners near the spring, with every facility for comfortable bathing. The spring derives its name from the fact that a stick left in the water will soon be turned red by its action. Two other springs much used for bathing purposes are the "Putnam" and "New Putnam," over which is built a magnificent bathing-house—one of the most elegant, best appointed and commodious in America.

The well-known Congress Spring was discovered in 1790 by Governor John Taylor Gilman of New Hampshire, while hunting in the woods, and received its present name probably from the fact that he had been a member of the Continental Congress. This water, like that of the "Empire Spring," discovered in 1840, is a strong cathartic. Another famous and popular spring is the "Hathorn," discovered in 1868. It is a cathartic and stimulant, with other medicinal qualities. A beautiful fountain plays in the large building erected over the spring.

Upon an elevation, a little distance south of the village, are situated four or five of the newer springs, some of them being among the most important waters of Saratoga. The "Vichy" and "Kissingen" springs, for example, unlike most of the others, are alkaline rather than salt waters, and besides their medicinal qualities, are admirable table waters for habitual use. The Kissingen was discovered in 1872 by boring one hundred and ninety-two feet through solid rock. The Vichy, discovered the same year, is drilled to a depth of one hundred and eighty feet, the greater part of the distance being also through solid rock. The "Geyser" spring, on this same elevation, discovered in 1870, was likewise drilled one hundred and thirty-two feet through rock. The "Carlsbad" spring, in some respects the most remarkable of all the waters, as also one of those more recently discovered, crowns the summit of the elevation about which are grouped the springs just mentioned. The Carlsbad was discovered in 1886 by drilling nearly three hundred feet through solid rock. Each gallon of this water is impregnated with the enormous quantity of seven hundred and thirteen cubic inches of carbonic acid gas, or two hundred and fifty-nine cubic inches more than any of the other waters. The effect of this gas in pushing forth the water and exciting it into a snowy foam, as it rushes over the fountain, is one of the prettiest sights imaginable.

Other important springs of this remarkable valley of fountains are the

The public spirit of Saratoga Springs is evidenced in such splendid buildings as the Armory of the Twenty-second Separate Company, and the large Convention Hall. Saratoga is the natural centre of great conventions —political, educational, religious, etc.—and she is now providing these characteristic American assemblages with one of the best great halls in the country.

Besides her own peculiar attractions of scenery and climate, and her profuse variety of refreshing and health-preserving waters, this ideal village is surrounded by many favored spots which delight the visitor. From any good vantage-point at the Springs can be seen four distinct mountain groups —the Adirondacks, the Hills of the Upper Hudson, and far beyond, the Green Mountains, and away in the southwest, the Catskills. Not many miles away is the beautiful Lake Desolation, while Schuylerville, where is planted the monument commemorating one of our most famous revolutionary battles, is distant only a short drive. About nine miles from the Springs, and connected with the village by railroad, is the picturesque Mt. McGregor, having at its summit a tasteful and commodious hotel. This spot is made memorable for all time to patriotic Americans because here were spent the last days of that great soldier, Gen. Grant.

The view from the beautiful slopes of this mountain is most entrancing, while along the curving road between the mountain and the village, the ever-changing but ever beautiful landscape forms a long series of delightful surprises.—L. A. Bond, in the National Magazine.

HARD, COLD FACTS.....

⊙ ⊙ ⊙ ⊙

The....

New York Recorder

is delivered at more residences than any other New York or Brooklyn newspaper. Why? Because it is the first and foremost family newspaper.

The big merchants of New York, noted for their effective advertising, buy more space in the RECORDER than any other metropolitan newspaper. Why? Because it reaches the homes.

The RECORDER is therefore

THE BEST MEDIUM FOR SUMMER RESORT ADVERTISING

Why? Because it reaches the class of people whom you would consider most desirable.

Who does not read Cholly Knickerbocker's chatty column? What woman, in the over 100,000 homes which the RECORDER reaches every week-day morning, or the 140,000 homes on Sunday, does not read the only Woman's Page? Every man or woman in the theatrical profession reads The Prompter. Everybody reads Joseph Howard, Jr.'s, column. Young folks delight in the RECORDER, JR. In bicycle matters the RECORDER is the recognized authority; every owner of a wheel reads it.

No newspaper appeals to every class of persons who comprise the army making its abode in the mountains and by the seashore during the summer so strongly as the RECORDER.

Advertising Rates are ten (10) cents per agate line for a single insertion, or $2.50 per agate line a month of thirty consecutive insertions, with a copy of the paper gratis during life of advertisement. Address

Some recent letters from persons interested in the Railway Department of ENGINEERING NEWS.

"We intend to subscribe to your paper as long as we remain in business"

HANKINS, MOSBY & CO.,
Richmond, Va. Engineers and Contractors.

"Do not stop my paper as I will pay for it if I have to sell my tools and watch."

WM. ORLANDO,
Belchertown, Mass. Railway Contractor.

"Your paper takes the lead and we all swear by it"

F. W. SARGENT,
Chicago, Ill. Congdon Brake Shoe Co.

"We fully appreciate Engineering News It is a great newspaper and as an advertising medium it has been satisfactory"

Youngstown, O. DANIELS STEEL R. R. TIE CO.

"We have had more inquiries from it than from all the other advertisements in the other Journals"

GEO. W. SMITH, Pres't & Gen'l Manager,
Baltimore, Md American Signal Company.

"We received seven bids for constructing the extension of our railway, most of the bidders stating that they saw our advertisement in your paper."

R. B. STRATTON,
Rumford Falls, Me. Chief Engineer.

"Your Journal has been with me for at least 15 years from Quebec to Oregon and from Virginia to Kansas, on railway construction, and I always prize it very highly."

Meadville, Pa. W. A. DOANE.

"This completes my file of Engineering News from 1879 to date I hope I may somewhere get those back of 1879, as I regard it as an invaluable record and one which will be more valuable and interesting as it becomes older."

E. B. CUSHING,
G., H. & S. A. Ry. M. Am. Soc. C. E.
Houston, Tex.

"Owing to this railway item I have had an avalanche of applications for positions, from chainmen to chief engineers and from brakemen to general managers, and the manufacturers and supply agents have flooded us with catalogues and samples"

Montana Midland R. R. W. A HAVEN,
Helena, Mont. Chief Engineer.

"We would like to state, at this time, that the best asset of said company, outside of its patents, in our mind is the keeping of their business before the public through columns such as yours, for we have received more inquiries from large manufacturing concerns, railroads, civil and mechanical engineers, than from any other publication in which the company advertised."

R. S PRINDLE, Sec'y,
Liberty St., Waring-Prindle Pump Co.
New York.

Letters from Engineers, Contractors and Manufacturers interested in the Construction of Bridges and Buildings, Sewers, Water-Works, Municipal and Government Work, and Civil and Mechanical Engineering in general, are just as numerous and appreciative.

A Splendid News Gatherer, Pure, Refined, Enterprising, and Distinctly the Best Newspaper in New York for a Decent Man and Decent Family.

The New York Tribune

Is known everywhere for its accuracy, good taste, and completeness as a business man's and family newspaper. In times of peril, there is always a rush for THE TRIBUNE. If such a newspaper is good in a public emergency, why is it not good the year around?

Its writers on the drama, the new operas, music, art, and new books, are men of brilliant attainments They are fearless in attacking the impure and untrue, and are never called off by the business office, because some manager threatens to withdraw his advertisement. Members of Masonic Societies will be especially interested in the whole page devoted to Masonic news in every Sunday's Tribune, written by a prominent official of the order.

THE TRIBUNE is the only newspaper in New York whose market reporters visit every market in the city, daily, for the actual prices of commodities.

The man, woman or child who grows up reading THE TRIBUNE will have a clean, strong, healthy mind, and accurate ideas of affairs.

(The Leading Evening Paper)

Last summer printed 97,023 agate lines (242 4-5 columns) of summer resort hotel advertisements, a gain of 21,917 agate lines (77 2-5 columns) over the preceding summer and more than printed by any other New York Newspaper except one? which has a large Sunday issue.

These figures prove that summer resort hotel proprietors and managers generally consider the "Leading Evening Paper" of the Metropolis the best medium in which to make their announcements. It is a high-class evening journal, which is purchased by the bankers, brokers, business and professional men, and which finds its way into the best homes.

It prints more news and gossip from the resorts than any other New York Newspaper.

The great Saturday issue, 20 to 32 pages, contains as valuable and interesting special features and departments as any of the Sunday papers.

People going to the country can have the paper sent to them for any length of time they desire, by addressing

The Hotel par excellence is THE ORIENTAL.

When a traveler asks for information regarding hotels, tell him that the best hotel in the great Southwest is "THE ORIENTAL."

This commodious six-story structure is a magnificent triumph of architectural skill. It is located on three prominent streets—with the main entrance on Commerce Street—and occupies nearly a block.

This house is handsomely furnished, with hot and cold water, lavatories, electric lights, bells, etc., in every room, and can accommodate over 600 guests.

The exterior is of pressed brick with sandstone trimmings. The interior of marble mosaic and plastic relief-work presenting a most luxurious appearance, unequaled by any hotel in the Southwest.

The table and cuisine is the very best the market affords, with a skilled chef and a corps of attentive waiters.

The hotel is supplied with an elegant bar and billiard room, shaving parlor, reading and writing rooms, fine artesian water, hydraulic elevators, telegraph office, news stand, drug store, etc., in fact every convenience possible. It is at "THE ORIENTAL" where the guest finds all the luxuries and comforts, hence the house receives the patronage of people who expect and appreciate being well taken care of.

A grateful public gladly concedes the fact, "THE ORIENTAL," at Dallas, Texas, stands to-day pre-eminent among the leading hotels of the United States

DALLAS is noted for its fine drives; it has over thirty miles of paved streets; of this over twelve miles are constructed of Bois d'Arc pavement, a specimen of wood that has been proved by experience to be as lasting as stone, showing excellent condition after 20 years of continuous use. There are forty miles of splendid macadam streets that are as fine, smooth and lasting as the celebrated macadam pikes in the blue grass region of Kentucky. Horseback riding, as well as driving, is one of the pleasures to be enjoyed here at all seasons of the year. The worthy disciples of Nimrod will find plenty of game in the surrounding country and can enjoy the pursuit of their favorite sport to their heart's content.

A Leading Physician of Dallas says:—"My observation leads me to regard Texas as a health resort unsurpassed—especially to those who are seeking to escape the rigors of a Northern winter, and pass this season where a dry atmosphere, mild temperature, and freedom from malarial influences are conditions sought. In points of accessibility, comfort of living and climate, I consider Dallas superior to any location in the State."

THE TIMES-UNION

Albany, N. Y.

41st Year; Every Evening Except Sunday

It carries a great number of Summer Resort Advertisements, and is especially attractive to Hotel men because of its high standing among people who have means, and who always patronize Summer Hotels. It is the popular Home Newspaper. . . . . .

The prices for advertising Summer Resorts in the Times-Union are: Short advertisements, in small type, only one cent a word each insertion. One-inch advertisement every day, for one month, $13.50; two months, $25; three months, $30. A two-inch advertisement will cost just double the above figures in each case. . . . . .

Its daily Circulation is GREATER THAN THE COMBINED CIRCULATION of all the other dailies published in Albany. Send for Specimen Copies.

127,500,000

One Hundred and Twenty-seven Million Five Hundred Thousand square feet of surface was painted with ....

SIPE'S JAPAN OILS IN 1895.

This is equal to Two Thousand Nine Hundred and Twenty-seven Acres or over Nine and Three-fourths Acres Per Day for every working day in the year.

SIPE'S JAPAN OIL is used daily by over ninety Railroad Companies and scores of private Car Lines. It has stood the test of time, having been on the market for over ten years.

For many purposes it is superior to linseed oil for painting, and costs less.

FACTS THAT ENFORCE CONVICTION AND CONFIDENCE.

LORD'S BOILER COMPOUNDS

ARE EXCLUSIVELY used by the U. S. Government, and ten Foreign Navies and Engineering Departments.

ARE EXCLUSIVELY represented and largely sold in every civilized country on the globe, thus enjoying a world-wide reputation and demand.

ARE EXCLUSIVELY recommended in our best modern works on Steam-Engineering.

THIS UNSURPASSED LIBRARY OF FIFTY VOLUMES MAY BE ATTAINED AS AN OUTRIGHT PRESENTATION BY ALL PATRONS OF LORD'S BOILER COMPOUNDS. . . . . .

THEORY VERSUS PRACTICAL EXPERIENCE.

Recently many speculative theorists have advertised on the market numberless chemical specialties, such as, each specialist representing his favorite expedient as of unapproachable and surpassing merit.

TRI SODIUM PHOSPHATE—SODIUM TANNATE—SODIUM FLUORIDE, &c.,

Practical experience and applied chemistry refutes the extreme claims of these theorists, and while conceding the value of these reagents, yet establishes the truth that their specific values are only best attained when they are subject to intelligent application; their relative superiority when compared critically being entirely dependent upon the character of the feed-water used.

Remember that these and many other equally valuable reagents, are invariably used in the formulation of LORD'S BOILER COMPOUNDS. Each Compound sold under this trade mark being scientifically formulated to meet each variety of natural water used by our patrons.

An analytical department conducted by (3) three expert water chemists, replete with the latest improved chemical apparatus is at the disposal of our patrons, and we are glad at all times to furnish analytical reports and all other desired information.

We recite an experience of thirty-six years devoted exclusively to the chemical purification of natural waters, and think that our mature and successful career justly entitles us to your confidence exclusive of all competitors.

Tourists may readily earn traveling expenses, by placing trial orders with large steam users.

With our proofs of merit the work is easily accomplished, off-handed, in a social manner.

We shall be glad to correspond with you and our best services are always at your disposal. Address all communications to

PLAATERKILL FALL MOUNTAIN HOUSE AND COTTAGE.
IN THE HEART OF THE CATSKILLS.

Eighth Successful Season
Under its Present
Proprietor.

"BLACK CHASM."

Rooms Enlarged and Refurnished.
Accommodation, 150 guests.
Open from May to December.
Elevation, 2,500 feet.

This picturesque resort is located on the top of the Catskills, on the same range of mountains as the Beach House, Hotel Kaaterskill and Overlook Mountain House, it cannot be surpassed for the beauty of its surroundings. Its healthfulness is undoubted. No malaria. No mosquitoes. No Grip. No Hay Fever. It has the most natural drainage, being only 200 yards from the Plaaterkill Falls and within a few minutes' walk of many beautiful shady nooks, and natural falls and chasms. The rooms are all light and overlooking beautiful scenery—Indian Head Mountain in the front and High Peak in the rear, and only a short walk from either. The table is supplied with the best meats, fish and poultry. Abundance of milk, eggs, and farm produce, from farm connected with the House. Broad Piazzas on all sides of House and cottages, affording all the comforts of a good home. First-class livery and large comfortable stages making excursions to places of interest every day for trifling expense to each person, thereby affording the patrons of this House a chance to visit all the principal attractions during their stay at this House, being in the most central part of the Catskills.

How to Reach this House from New York

Take the West Shore R. R., foot of Franklin or West 42d Street Ferries, to Saugerties, own conveyance to House; or, West Shore R. R. to Kingston, thence Ulster & Delaware R. R. to Hunter or Hunter Junction or Tannersville Depots; or West Shore R. R. to Catskill, thence change cars to Palenville or Otis Elevated R. R. to top of Mountain; or Hudson River R. R. to Tivoli, cross ferry to Saugerties, stage to House direct; or by either of the above railroads to Rondout, then Ulster & Delaware R. R. to Tannersville, stage to House. My own conveyances will connect with any of the above railroad depots by request. Stages meet the 11 A. M. train by West Shore R. R. to Saugerties every day, direct to this House. Guests are particularly requested to inform us in good time at which of the above mentioned depots they wish us to meet them and time of leaving New York, or time of arrival, so as to avoid all inconvenience to themselves. The quickest route and the less expensive is via West Shore Railroad to Saugerties, stage to House, making the mountain ascent through the Clove to the top, affording beautiful scenery and falls. Also, two handsome lines of Steamers, commodious and elegantly fitted up with state-rooms, etc., leave New York, foot of West 11th Street, North River, every evening, at 6 P. M. (Saturdays 1 P. M.), arriving at Saugerties in morning. My stage will meet boat by request and have guests to House in time for breakfast. From Philadelphia.—Take Pennsylvania Railroad, 8.20 A. M., gets to Saugerties 2.52 P. M.; stage meets this train every day. Or, Pennsylvania Railroad, 1.06 P. M., get to Saugerties 7.29; will meet this train by request.

Terms, $8 to $10 per week. Special rates to families. Send address, and a circular, giving full particulars and picture of House, surroundings, references, etc., will be mailed.

A COSY INTERIOR.

Riverside Drive, New York City. Ralph A. Gushee, Proprietor.

Overlooking Riverside Drive, Grant's Tomb, and the Hudson River, Opposite the World-Renowned Palisades.

The castle-crowned and terraced Rhine, the beautiful blue Danube, the Thames with its modern embankments and the Seine with its artistic bridges, all have their attractive features, but none has a shore line direct from the hand of the Divine Architect, and to which man can do nothing by way of improvement, like that formed by the Palisades.

Magnificent Scenery. Beautiful Drive. Unsurpassed Cuisine.

No trip to New York is perfect without a visit to the Hotel Claremont. Reached by all elevated railroads to 125th St., taking crosstown cars to Riverside Drive. From West Shore (West 42d St.) Ferry, take White Car and transfer at 7th Ave. to Boulevard car, which passes entrance to hotel.

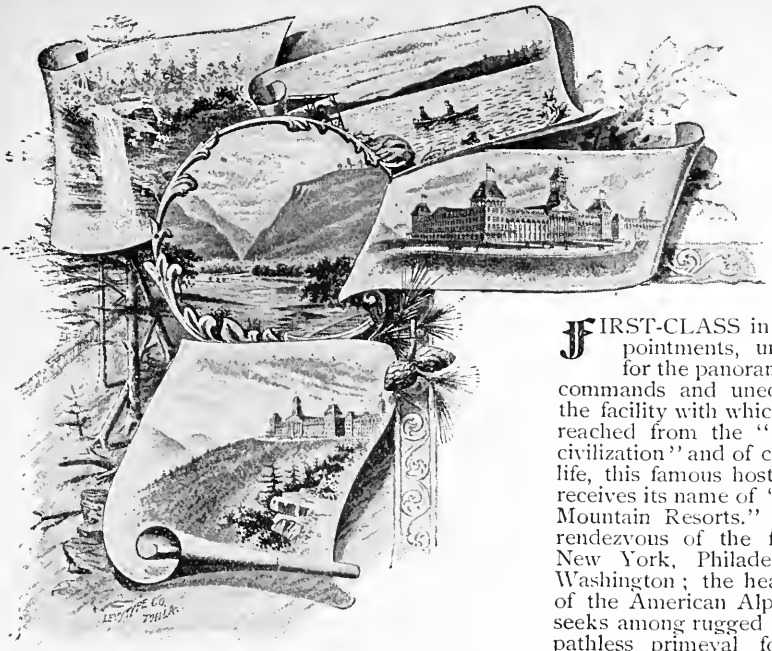
HOTEL KAATERSKILL—KAATERSKILL, N. Y.

The Catskill Mountains.

A Summer in a Land of Mountain Sunshine

Hotel Kaaterskill



Season of 1896.

FIRST-CLASS in all its appointments, unsurpassed for the panorama which it commands and unequalled in the facility with which it can be reached from the "centres of civilization" and of commercial life, this famous hostelry justly receives its name of "Queen of Mountain Resorts." It is the rendezvous of the fashion of New York, Philadelphia and Washington; the headquarters of the American Alpinist, who seeks among rugged crags and pathless primeval forests the solitudes of the Black Forest and of the Harz; the recreation and recovery-ground of those who need only pure mountain air and the inhalation of balsam and fir. It is not for naught that the bard has sung:

"O'er all the land, go where you will,
'Tis but the one old song, the Kaaterskill."

The Hotel Kaaterskill is situated just 2495 feet above tide-water, at an elevation where the temperature is from 15 to 20 degrees lower than it is on the sunny plains below; on the hottest days, therefore, even those suffering most from the heat, can enjoy the pleasures of a cool climate. Situated on the open declivity of South Mountain, in the midst of a natural park of rare beauty, it commands an enchanting view of mountain and valley alternations, from the deep blue plain of the Hudson to the forest-clad summits of the highest Catskill peaks. On all sides the alluring path only opens up finer and finer prospects; tumbling cascades sigh with the woodland zephyrs, bringing their music from the silver lakes which give them birth. These are all with us, and afford an endless variety of recreation to the gentle loiterer, the restless angler, and the guileless youth who still sing their pæans to the "rising moon." The Kaaterskill is beyond comparison the largest mountain house in the world; with a frontage of 612 feet, it ranks in magnitude with the National Capitol at Washington. Its accommodations are for 1500 guests, for whose comfort and pleasure everything is done that is possible in a mountain hostelry. A spacious ball-room occupies a portion of the Annex, where music and dancing are the order on every evening except Sunday; and during the day the hotel band regales the guests in the parlors or on the stately verandas. Tennis and ball grounds give comfort to some, while others seek it in our well-stocked stables, in which are gathered upward of a hundred head of horses and vehicles innumerable.

The Season opens with the last week in June and continues through the month of September. Intending patrons should make their arrangements early, and secure what is to them the desirable quarters. In four hours' time after leaving the "forgetable and forgotten" metropolis of the Empire State, you are seated in our cool parlors, unstained by dust, and vigorous through the enthusiasm which the mountain journey has called forth. Two hours more unites with the City of Brotherly Love.

RIP VAN WINKLE'S COTTAGE, SLEEPY HOLLOW.

The Manners and Doings, Together with an Accurate and Truthful Account of the Wonderful Adventures of the late Rip Van Winkle

IN a tiny cottage, time-worn and brown,
Just on the edge of the sleepy town,
With a scolding wife and a fair-haired child,
Lived Rip Van Winkle, gentle and mild.
Too lazy to work, too jolly to fight,
A playmate was he from morning till night,
For all the loitering village boys.
He flew their kites, he mended their toys,
Or he sauntered down the quiet street,
With the first old chum he chanced to meet,
To join the group at the tavern door,
And list to the same tales o'er and o'er—
Of hobgoblins bold who came in the storm,
To kindle the lightnings, their toddy to warm,
Or rolled great boulders, with thunderous din,
From the mountain crags to the caverns within,
And played odd pranks on mortals who won
A single peep at their ghost-like fun.
Then Rip would reel home with shuffling gait,
And wish that his Gretchen would only wait
Till he told her these wonderful stories through,
Before she let loose her tongue, like a shrew,
And scolded and called him names so rude,
Declaring he drank while his child lacked food.
So kind-hearted Rip would wake with the day,
And off to some mountain streamlet would stray,
Where, with Schneider, his dog, he would doze and wait
Till some hungry fish would take the bait;
Or, with gun and game-bag hung o'er his back,
Among the mountains he followed the track
Of the wild deer, or bear, in the forests deep,
Where the sunlight could only at noon-day peep.

THE ESOPUS—NEAR MOUNT PLEASANT, SHANDAKEN, N. Y.

Through the tangled thicket and deep ravine,
To jutting crag, from which was seen
The wind-blown forests which lay below,
Like sea-green billows that come and go.

One day Rip paused on a dizzy height,
To watch day's death and dusky night
Come creeping up, making all things dim,
Till e'en the mountains seemed strange to him.
Then he called his dog, with a whistle clear—
"Old fellow, we'll have to camp, I fear,
And I haven't a drop in this flask—just think!
I'd make friends with a ghost, if he had a drink,"
When a weird "Ha! ha! ha!" which the echoes repeat,
Made Schneider cringe low at his master's feet.
"Ho! Rip Van Winkle!" a voice cried shrill,
"R-i-p!—Rip!—Rip!—Rip!"—then all was still.
Rip strained his eyes, to catch a sight
Of a shadowy—something—with all his might.
It nearer came, till soon he could trace
The form of a man with a curious face.
The nose told a tale of many cups quaffed,
The mouth, that now grinned, might some time have laughed.
Short were his legs, his body was stout,
His clothing, with buttons, was decked round about;
Peaked toes turned up and shoes high-heeled,
The hose blood red, which the legs scarce filled,
A sugar-loaf crown on a flapping brim,
Completed the creature which climbed up to him,
As Rip stood staring, his hand on his gun,
Uncertain whether to stay or to run,
The phantom shifted the burden he bore
('Twas a keg such as Rip had oft seen before).
He motioned and beckoned, as though he would say,
"Will you help?" Now Rip could never say nay,
So caught up the keg, though 'twas as heavy as lead,
And followed the owner, who moved on ahead.
The way was rugged and hard to keep,
The thunder was rolling heavy and deep.
They stumbled on, till a turn in the way
Brought them out in a glare as bright as day.
Rip droped the keg from very fright,
And stood aghast at the marvelous sight!
The strangest set of dwarfish men
(Dressed like his guide, save now and then
Some queer adornment, which Rip well knew
Denoted rank in the phantom crew)
Were playing a glorious nine-pin game;
Their balls were of flint, and the pins the same,
And the lightnings flamed and the thunder crashed,
As whirling balls 'midst nine-pins dashed,
So Rip forgot to be afraid,
But shouted and cheered till the game was played.
Then the keg was tapped, and each filled a glass.
Surely, thought Rip, they will not pass,
And forget 'twas I who brought their drink.
Just then a short man, with a sly, twisted wink,
Held a full glass toward Rip, and with an odd leer,
Tapped his waistcoat, as if he would say, "Put it here!
Now Rip had been hunting the long day through,
And Rip was thirsty, so what could he do
But tip up the glass, and drain the last drop;
'Twas a sin, twixt the top and the bottom to stop.
Then, Rip being tired, having gotten his schnapps,
Stretched out for the longest and soundest of naps.
The shrill note of cricket, or soft voice of bird,

Were the sounds that, on waking, Rip drowsily heard,
With a yawn and a smile, for the dreams that had fled,
He slowly looked 'round, then lifted his head;
Then quickly he thought of his Gretchen, at home,
Who never forgave when he ventured to roam
So far from the town. He must hasten him now
To smooth those new wrinkles from out her stern brow.
His joints were quite stiff—he really was lame—
Now which was the way that last night he came?
He looked for his gun, but what a—— shame!
His beautiful flint lock was only a name,
The barrel was rusty, worm-eaten the stock,
The low-growing violets covered the lock.
What ills have they wrought—those odd, gruesome knaves?
He will ask his Gretchen, for, though she raves,
She speaks the truth, and, sure, can tell
Some sovereign remedy for their spell.
Wondering and stumbling, he tottered down
To the cot, on the edge of his native town.
But the door hangs loose on the hinges now,
And the shutters are caught in the apple-tree bough,
But the woman he loved, yet feared the most,
Is numbered among the silent host.
The tavern chums he had known of old,
Are long forgotten, and lie neath the mold;
And the children who romped on the quiet street,
Followed and jeered him, and tripped his feet,
As he searched and questioned the village through,
For the sun-lit hair and the eyes of blue
He remembered so well, only yesterday,
The "Madchen" who grieved as he went away.
But he knew her not, when they met, at last,
For she was a wife, and her arms held fast
A smiling, wee cherub. For twenty long years
With their burden of doubts and joys and fears,
Had rolled o er the earth, while Rip was asleep
In that elf-hidden dell on the mountain's steep.
(Yes, twenty cold winters had iced him about,
And twenty long summers again thawed him out.)

And Rip was an old man, wrinkled and wan,
With faltering steps and locks unshorn.
Still he loved a story, and often told
Of the nine-pin game and the players of old.
But the men who gathered about him now
Received his tale with lifted brow.
They said to each other, "'Tis a very old man,
He will 'pull the long bow' as long as he can!"
When April days came with sunshine and showers!
They laid him away 'neath the bright, nodding flowers,
For his life and his stories at last were o'er—
Rip Van Winkle now sleeps and will wake no more!

A POEM.

AWAY with your regions of flimsy romance,
They exist but in fancy, that's all!
Come with us and enjoy lovely Nature's expanse,
A pleasure that never can pall.
We'll take the West Shore, the most picturesque route,
And traverse the loveliest land
That the eye ever saw or the foot ever strode,
Or the taste of the tourist e'er planned.

Cross Weehawken Ferry and there take the train,
Then joyfully northward you speed;
First inland, then joining the Hudson again,
To the river, through forest and mead.
West Point comes to view, then Newburgh flies by,
Elysian—not earthly, they seem;
Kingston next—here you branch for the Catskills, quite nigh,
And it all seems a most splendid dream.

And then pleasant Albany comes into view,
The Capitol, with its great dome;
The abode of the State's Legislative ga— crew,
And the Governor's official home;
Then Utica, Syracuse, Rochester, where
The Genesee beckons and calls;
Then Buffalo—you'll always find air enough there—
And lastly famed Niagara Falls.

There are many more beautiful spots on the route,
But what boots it their beauties to tell;
The wisest of travelers likes to find out
Something special his stories to swell.
We offer him mountains and valleys and dales,
And rivers and brooklets and lakes;
He'll find them alluring, not a traveler fails,
If the West Shore's the road that he takes.
